SKINNY KIBBLES

Around And About Town

With C. F. SKIRVIN

You speed demons who think you must hurry to get some place where you won't have any business after arriving, should stop and take mental inventory before you kill yourself or somebody else. Automobile rushing reminds me of the earlier days of the radio when some envious operator would come down town and report that he had been able to get Bagdad or Cairo or Timbuktu. Later on an over-zealous autoist regaled his friends with the story about how quick he made the trip from one place to another, not thinking about giving credit to the many thoughtful and careful drivers who did their best to give him a clear track. Ho, hum, there isn't much use to sermonize on this subject. You'll go out and do the same thing over and over again until something happens, and then maybe you will quit.

Small town joy-riding: Following a fire truck.

I get an invitation on the 8th to attend a dinner on the 7th, and it just can't be done. The boys at the Elks club back in the old home town wanted to feed me, provided I held a paid up card.

There is one out of many things that I have found out about crossing a street intersection. You won't get killed if you are quick enough to get out of the way of a car. The burden of risk still rests with the pedestrian.

Horatio J. Forgy slips me the bad news that the dog banquet is off. The dog died. Arrangements were being made for an old bacchanalian revelry, moist biscuits, hors-d'oeuvres, and two etc's, just for the dog and I. Woe is me, woe is me.

Fem friend who won the first two pools in the World Series wants the games to continue indefinitely.

Sometimes I am unable to tell whether the World Series is between the Giants and the Yankees or different types of radio manufacturers. There is so much competition in announcement that I can't tell whether a ball game is in progress or an unleashed mob participating in a riot.

Was it old Caesar who gave away free corn and free banquets and free gladiatorial entertainment before Rome went to h—? What about history repeating itself?

Charley Overshiner snuggles up to me with a confidential message. He says there is a desert wind in the air. Then Charley gets out quicker than he came in, but he had a smile on his face, and I didn't.

Friend who put a nickel in a ball machine turns around to tell me that he just missed winning by 10 points. The other two fellows who preceded him were able to make the same report.

The Pomona fair closed with my free transportation ticket punched one time, and then I didn't get a seat in the grandstand. You see, I haven't forgotten the experience. I treated the management better than it did me. I refrained from looting my transportation.

Joe Kozina, from the Yorba Linda neighborhood, came over a few mornings ago to get his breakfast and play the banjo. I do not know how he came out with the breakfast, but his banjo playing showed no slump in his usual style and proficiency. Joe's visits are too infrequent. He is not only a master of the banjo, but he's mighty good company. Guess I'll invite him over some time just to get a two-fold profit out of his visit.

And then someone turned the wind in our direction Friday afternoon, and it was a dry desert wind, such as Prophet Trickey of Orange predicted. I've been considering a public forum on this question.

Map U.S. Course in 9-Power Parley

FOLLOW FDR'S OUTLINE IN CONFERENCE

Italy Approves Japan Action in Sino War

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Secretary Hull and his aides, pursuing a course charted personally by President Roosevelt, put the finishing touches today to an outline of policy for American delegates to the nine-power parley designed to curb Japan's invasion of China. No hint of the nature of this policy was disclosed after extended conferences which the President held yesterday with his chief diplomatic advisers and the cabinet. It was believed, however, that a definite decision was reached on the lengths to which the United States will go in collaborating with other governments to apply the President's suggested "quarantine" of Japan.

Neither did state department officials have any immediate comment on the Japanese reply to its condemnation.

CHINESE URGE 9-POWER CONFERENCE

GENEVA. (AP)—China, pleading that the war with Japan daily is proving more disastrous to her, today urged speedy convocation of the nine-power treaty conference to adopt effective measures to end the conflict.

Acceptance of a league invitation to China, one of the adherents to the treaty guaranteeing her territorial integrity, to participate in the conference, came in a cablegram from Nanking, China's capital, signed by Wang Chung-hui, her foreign minister.

ITALY APPROVES ACTS OF JAPAN IN CHINA

TOKYO. (AP)—The Domei (Japanese) news agency reported today that Italian Ambassador Giacinto Auriti assured Kenseku Horinouchi, Japanese vice minister of foreign affairs, that Italy approves Japan's measures in China and "will never spare general support to Japan."

The Italian embassy declined to make any comment to the Associated Press on the report.

ANSWER MILD

Domei said Auriti gave his assurances to Horinouchi in a formal visit and authorized the vice minister to convey the Italian stand to the whole nation.

Meanwhile, authoritative Japanese sources said the Italian stand.

I'll Tell You

By BOB BURNS

I don't believe nature ever intended for us to be too technical. The more you delve into life's problems the more confused you get and the more apt you are to make a mistake.

I had an uncle who made quite a study of women's dispositions and he decided before he got married he got married with a good even temper. He was beginning to get pretty discouraged when he went to a party one night and was sitting opposite from a woman who got some soup spilled on her gown.

When he saw this woman smile sweetly, he says to himself, "That's the woman for me!" So he started courtin' her. No matter what test he put her to, she was always so smiling and sweet about it that he finally married her. Then he got a shock.

No matter what little thing he did, she'd fly into a violent temper. Finally he says to her, "Why is it I never saw any signs of that temper while I was courtin' you?" and she says, "I use'ta wait until you left and then I'd go upstairs and bite chunks out of the washstand."

Lawless Gangsters See the Light

Though their foes were dummies, the setting was realistic enough as G-men, using every modern weapon at their command, "rubbed out" a desperate hideout at the marine rifle range, Quantico, Va. Creeping stealthily toward the two-story painted canvas structure, federal agents tossed a gas bomb through an upper window, released parachute flares and then laid down a merciless, deafening barrage of machine gun fire which riddled the "gangsters" with tracer bullets and destroyed the "death trap."

'PICKET' CRISIS TENSE

ROME SPURNS PARLEY PLAN

Spain Charges Rome With Aiding Rebels

BULLETIN

PARIS. (AP)—Italy rejected tonight the Franco-British invitation for a three-power conference on withdrawal of Italian volunteers from the Spanish civil war. The Italian statement said problems concerning intervention should be handled by the London 27-nation non-intervention committee.

LONDON. —The Spanish government today accused Italy of planning an unprecedented campaign in support of the Spanish insurgent cause.

At the same time Italy's answer to the Anglo-French invitation to confer on withdrawal of foreign volunteers from the Spanish civil war was delivered to the French and British envoys in Rome. British authorities here did not disclose its contents immediately.

Parisian sources, however, reported unofficially the Italian reply ruled out the possibility of a meeting to discuss withdrawal of volunteers unless Germany was invited.

The Spanish government's note, which also was reported sent to Paris, claimed the Valencia government had information new Italian intervention in the Spanish war would include "gas attacks on Spanish cities" of strategic importance.

It also charged Italian submarines disguised with Spanish flags "so their piratical acts may be imputed to the Spanish government fleet" would be used.

State's Cars Top New York

SACRAMENTO. (AP)—For the first time in history California motor vehicle registration has passed the total registration of New York state and assumed leadership in the nation.

California department of motor vehicles today reported 2,476,478 vehicles registered for the first six months of 1937, compared with 2,360,408 registered in New York. Previously California was ahead of New York in the number of pleasure cars but never in the combined total of pleasure cars and commercial vehicles.

BREAKS NECK, HAS 19TH CHILD

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP)—Mrs. Myrtle Arrington, 39, who broke her neck last Sunday and gave birth to her nineteenth child Thursday, was happily convalescent today.

Pating the healthy 8-pound, 10-ounce daughter, Mrs. Arrington smiled when doctors told her she probably will get well. She said she was glad the baby's name—Nadine Genevieve—had been decided.

"I've had so many children," she said, "I'd almost run out of names."

LABOR ASKED TO AID PEACE

DENVER. (AP)—British labor appealed to the American Federation of Labor today to help promote peace through "concerted action" of the world's democratic nations.

J. C. Little, British labor delegate to the A. L. of L. convention, told the delegates that "the mere threat of such combination would be sufficient to save the world for democracy and establish for posterity a system of collective security."

"As I speak to you, hostilities in all their grim brutality have broken out in the Far East, and dark clouds of war are looming over Europe," Little said.

"An accident or a simple error may set the world aflame. Should this horror descend upon us, civilization itself may be destroyed."

A. F. L. PRINTERS' TENSION GROWS DENVER. (AP)—Increasing bitterness of American Federation of Labor leaders toward the CIO heightened today the tension between the federation and one of its oldest and largest affiliates—the International Typographical union.

Protests against seating of Charles P. Howard, president of the printers and CIO secretary, as a delegate brought heated but unavailing complaints from other Typographical union leaders.

In turn, the printers, disclaiming any intention of withdrawing, intimated they may attempt to force upon the federation a forthright decision on expulsion of the union.

GIANTS BLAST 12 HITS, WIN FOURTH GAME

King Carl Prevents Sweep By Americans

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK. (AP)—Backed by his mates' first outburst of hitting fireworks in four games, King Carl Hubbell subdued the mighty Yankees bats today with a six-hit pitching performance and hurled the Giants to a 7 to 3 victory for their first triumph of the 1937 World Series. The Yankees still lead, three games to one and need but one more victory to retain the championship.

FIRST EXCITING—YANKIES Crosetti flied out to Whitehead back of second. Rolfe smashed the second pitch to center and ran all the way to third when Leiber failed to make a circus catch. It was scored as a triple. Leiber turned a somersault and the ball skidded past him. DiMaggio smashed a terrific drive to the bull pen in

SESSION MAY BE FORCED BY COTTON

Huge Crop, Low Price Aids Congress Plan

WASHINGTON. (AP)—The agriculture department's cotton crop forecast of 17,573,000 bales, second largest in history, appeared today to give the final push, if any is needed, toward a special session of congress.

If one is called, probably between Nov. 8 and 16, surplus crop control legislation will be its first business.

On that legislation, aimed at stabilizing prices and supplies, the administration hints hopes of stopping such sharp price declines as the newest cotton estimate caused.

New Orleans quotations dropped as much as $2.15 a bale after the forecast was flashed over the wires yesterday, and the staple for future delivery slumped $1.40 to $1.90 a bale at New York. Prices touched the lowest points in more than four years.

Informed persons said President Roosevelt and Secretary Wallace, in a private discussion late yesterday, considered moves to aid the cotton South, where prosperity leans heavily on the "white gold."

SEEKS $41,427 OVER CRASH

Damage of $41,427.37 were asked today in a superior court suit over an auto accident last Aug. 23 on Orangefield avenue in which four persons were injured.

Plaintiffs are Hazel W. Stowe, Cecil W. Stowe, Thomas Stowe, 14, and Yvonne Baker, 10, who sustained injuries in the crash. They were suing George Alma and Wallace Fee, Joe Miranda and Alex Martin, alleged to be owners and operators of a truck which was involved in a collision with the Stowe car.

R. T. Walters, Whittier attorney, filed the suit on condition he receives 35 per cent of the judgment, according to a petition filed with the complaint.

RUSSIA TO BUY ARMS IN U. S.

NEW YORK. (AP)—The Soviet government, engaged in Europe's headlong armaments race, has authorized agents here to purchase $50,000,000 worth of naval equipment for export to Russia in the immediate future, it was disclosed today.

Morris Wolf, counsel for the Carp Export and Import corporation of New York, which is negotiating the huge deal, said the war material will consist of prefabricated parts of battleships and other types of fighting craft—turrets, armor plate, propelling machinery, boilers and engines, and 16-inch naval guns.

Seven Die in Train-Car Crash

GARY, Ind. (AP)—A double crash at a flash-protected multiple grade crossing left seven persons dead and four injured, one critically, here today.

Two automobiles collided first at the crossing in the southwest part of the city, and a few seconds later a passenger train plowed into the wreckage, throwing the dead, injured and parts of the cars in all directions.

The accident occurred at the junction of two heavily traveled boulevards and the railroad. All of those involved in the crash were Gary residents.

RAID STAGED BY COMBINED LAW UNITS

Arrests Climax Two Months' Sleuthing

Raiding officers from three law enforcement agencies last night quietly surrounded a La Habra cafe, entered and surprised nine poker players, whom they placed under arrest on the charge of violating state gambling laws. The surprised players made no attempt to resist the lawmen, who had taken them off their guard.

The officers swept up an assortment of poker chips from the tables and confiscated approximately $50 in cash which they said was being used in the games.

TWO-MONTH PROBE The captives were then taken away. They later were released on bail.

The raid followed two months of investigation by Police Chief A. J. Collins of La Habra, district attorney's investigators and deputy sheriffs.

Charged with operating the game on a percentage basis, Russell Jennings, formerly of Whitford, was released on $50 bail. Clarence Michael, proprietor of the cafe who admitted leasing a back room to Jennings but claimed he had no interest in the game, was admitted to $25 bail.

Seven persons assertedly playing in the game when the raid was made were arrested and released on $10 bail each. They gave their names as Harry C. Hall, Edwin P. Fitzgerald, Harry J. Livingston, Bill Sweet, Junior Carroll Everett, Robert W. Willis and Fletcher Reed.

Collins began his investigation two months ago, working in cooperation with R. H. Sanders, investigator for District Attorney W. F. Menton. Complaints were prepared in La Habra city court yesterday, and the raid was made shortly before midnight.

DRAWN LEGAL Most of the asserted players have come from the southern part of Los Angeles county and various places in Orange county, but few of them have been La Habra men, according to Collins.

"There is no law against draw poker at a private party where the house does not collect a percentage," Menton explained today. "But 'stud' poker is technically outlawed as gambling, and participants in any game where the house is paid a percentage are subject to arrest."

Mother of Six Found Murdered

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP)—Muskogee county officers investigated today the mutilated death of Mrs. Alfred Smith, 35, Muskogee housewife, whose body was found yesterday in a cornfield, the head almost severed.

The body was bruised and lacerated. Deputy Sheriff Paul Hinson said there were indications of a struggle.

T. J. Dunn, chemist, said laboratory tests were being made to determine whether Mrs. Smith, mother of six children, had been attacked. She had been missing since Thursday morning.

OUR STRANGE GAMING LAWS

By BRADEN FINCH Playing stud poker at home where the house—or host—doesn't clip a percentage from the pot is perfectly legal, says District Attorney Menton. This ruling won't be much consolation to those nine men arrested last night at La Habra. They are charged with being law breakers, because the house is supposed to have taken a percentage.

Yet if they had been placing pari-mutuel bets on the ponies at Santa Anita, the state not only would have permitted and approved the gambling, but would have grabbed a fat part of the house's percentage for itself. Funny things, these gambling laws.

MANIAC 'LIPSTICK MURDERER' THREATENS TO STRIKE AGAIN

POLICE SEEK KILLER OF COUPLE

Fear Mysterious N. Y. Crime to Be Repeated

NEW YORK (AP)—A cryptic message received by police—purportedly from the phantom "Scarlet Circle" slayer of Lewis Weiss, 20, and his 19-year-old sweetheart, Frances Hajek—was quoted today as threatening:

"I will kill again."

Deputy Chief Inspector John J. Ryan, while withholding further details of the message, indicated his belief it was genuine and that the apparently maniacal slayer himself.

Inspector Ryan immediately ordered 137 policemen shifted to emergency duty for night patrol in the vicinity of the lonely Hollis Woodlands, near Queens Village, Long Island, where the bullet-pierced bodies of the young lovers were discovered by a stroller last Sunday afternoon, slumped in the front seat of Weiss' parked car.

The "kill again" message, Ryan indicated, showed enough inside knowledge of the double slaying to convince him that the killer plans to emulate the feats of the never-captured "3-X" murderer of seven years ago, who preyed on Woodland spooners and killed two men in parked cars with their sweethearts.

In this connection, it was recalled that "3-X," as he signed himself in letters to newspapers warning that he was about to strike again, worked on a weekly schedule in carrying out his will-to-wisdom program of terror.

Since it was just a week ago tonight that the "scarlet circle" slayer struck, leaving the foreheads of his two youthful victims daubed with a crudely-drawn circle of lipstick, Inspector Ryan heavily reinforced the patrol squads which have been scouring the vicinity during the past week.

tion, with the debaters restricted to orange groves, and if desert wind gets a vote, I'll be surprised.

A lot of folks are worrying about the Japanese war, and whether we are going to get into it. I'm not. They waited too long to catch me.

And then there was the fellow who had 20 cents to "hold him" until pay day. But when the third game of the World Series was over he added two and one-half dollars to his bank account. He held pool ticket number six. That was the silver lining projected into a gray perspective. And just about that time the lucky guy recalled that he had promised to see a sick friend.

Merchant, with three successive lean days, wants to know: "What is business?" He forgot that a few days previous he had submitted some comparative records, and he was to the good. Our spirits rise and fall with the commercial barometer. We remember the blue days and forget the bright ones. Why not reverse the rule. It's happy psychology even if it doesn't do any good. Business may not always go on as usual, but it must go on.

MISSIONARY MEET

The Missionary society of the First Presbyterian church will meet in the Manor, 305 Orange avenue, with Mrs. O. Scott McFarland at 2 p. m. Wednesday. Mrs. G. W. Leive will preside as leader. Miss Mary Howard will lead devotions, and Miss Lucy Shafer will speak on Alaska. An executive board meeting at 1:30 p. m. will precede the regular session.

STORM KILLS 16

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil. (AP)—Sixteen persons were known today to have been killed and scores injured by a violent wind storm which wrecked the town of Santa Maria. Homes were torn down, trees uprooted and communications disrupted by the storm.

ATTENTION LIMA BEAN GROWERS

The Board of Directors of the Association voted at their regular meeting this week to make the first payment to growers on 1937 crop deliveries of regular Limas on the basis of $3.50 per cwt. on 85% of gross weight or field run. This is a liberal first payment in comparison with the present market price, and the Association is borrowing the money it will require this season at an unusually low rate of interest.

In view of the fact that two of the largest dealers in Lima beans died during the past year and their offices have been closed, and with the remaining bean dealers seeming to be very inactive, it would seem to be important and desirable that growers not now members should promptly place their membership with the Association. Usually, the Association closes its pool to membership for the season on Oct. 1st, but to afford an additional numbers a further opportunity the Directors voted to open membership in the 1937 crop pool open until Nov. 1st. Growers should give this immediate consideration and take prompt action.

The Association also desires to warn growers against the practice of lending their beans to dealers or giving dealers possession of their beans without receiving full current market price since such plans would give speculative dealers a chance to bear the market with the grower's own beans.

Farmer's Land Takes Big Drop

Wheat hits a new low on the farm of George Wilkinson near Potwin, Kan. Nature played a strange prank when the bottom of part of a field suddenly dropped out. In two days the earth sank 30 feet, leaving a hole 100 feet in diameter filled with green water. Geologists attributed the drop to crumbling limestone, affected by an underground stream's dissolving the formation.

UNION HEAD EXPLAINS STORE HOURS

President Robert Hosmer of the meatcutters' local No. 453, yesterday made the following statement explaining the union's position in regard to uniform closing hours for meat markets. The statement is published in full, and follows below:

"It is hoped by the organized labor of Orange county that the officials of Santa Ana will adopt a 'hands off' policy in the labor situation which has developed in Santa Ana recently.

"This situation resulted from the fact that one or two merchants refused to abide by the 'shorter hours' system which was ratified by the Orange County Retail Meat Dealers association and local 453, A. F. of L. This system has been in effect since Sept. 20, and has been observed by all the leading merchants in Orange county.

"Local 453 asks the 'buying public' to patronize the stores that are observing the 'shorter hours' system. By doing so you will help stabilize these policies because organized labor has come to Orange county to stay and is putting up a fight to the finish."

FRESHIES NAME PRESIDENT

Freshmen at Santa Ana Junior college named four students to serve as class officers for the first semester in election conducted yesterday.

Bill Twist, football player, and graduate of Newport Harbor High school, was elected president. He is a member of the varsity "S" club, American Association of Engineers and Bachelors service club.

The other candidates were Richard Wright and Harold Tucker for president; Edwin Cox and Don Struck, vice president; Josephine Butler, secretary; and Floyd Barnes, treasurer.

The newly elected officers will replace Dick Phillips, president; Bill Semacher, vice president; Marian Baxter, secretary, and John McBride, treasurer.

May Deport CIO Chieftain

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—A new secretary to deport Harry Bridges, Australian-born leader of the West Coast CIO, was confirmed here today by Governor Charles H. Martin of Oregon.

He said he had told President Roosevelt that the labor leader is a "Communist," that evidence obtained in Oregon proved it, and demanded that he be deported to Australia.

Market Owners Ready to Defend Property

Main Drive-In market last night and a "paper picket" at the market was sent home dripping wet after a market employee had turned the hose on him.

TEAR GAS BOMBS

Police armed with tear gas bombs rushed to the market this morning after the "paper picket" had been doused with water. The situation already had become intense after infuriated owners of the market discovered the terrible-smelling crystals on the floor of the market last night.

Slaters' market at 1245 South Main street, one of the two which have defied the union, was warned after the "stink-bombing" of the Main Drive-In, and Slater, the owner, armed himself with a six-shooter and prepared to shoot it out with anybody who should attempt the same trick on him. The Crystals were sprayed on the floor of the Main Drive-In at about 8 p. m., and later on the market was closed at different times. Slater kept his market open until 9:30 p. m. waiting for any possible marauders.

TACTICS CHANGE

A sudden change in the tactics to 10:45 o'clock this morning resulted in removal of the "paper pickets" from the Main Drive-In and Slater's market. Steve Davidson, business representative of the meatcutters' union, said they were pulled off for a "very special reason."

The "paper picket" who had the hose turned on him had just alighted from an automobile at the Main Drive-In market this morning. He had in his arms copies of the Orange County Labor News which the union "newsboys" have been selling in front of the two markets in an effort to cut off supplies of meat to the markets by letting union truck drivers know the markets had incurred the displeasure of the meatcutters' union. Suddenly a jet of water struck him in the face and he was soaked through. He left, but two other "pickets" continued to patrol the market.

FLOOR WASHED

The floor at the Main Drive-In, Chestnut and Main, was washed again and again, and ammonia and other chemicals were used in an attempt to obliterate the odor. Clerks said two men did the job before they noticed them. One left before the other, and the last one planked down too much money for the purchase, remarking "I've got to get out of here. The smell is terrible, and I can't stand it."

The market owners expect more trouble either tonight or tomorrow. They have announced that they will open tomorrow, despite the union ruling against Sunday opening of meat markets. They had heard that the "paper pickets" were to be pulled off their beats sometime today, and that a meeting will be called sometime next week to talk over the situation.

Hears Funeral Through Radio

ALHAMBRA. (AP)—Louis Bradfield, an invalid, heard in bed here today the funeral services for his father, held in Long Beach, 20 miles away.

Final rites for Stephen A. Bradfield, 82, retired Greeley, Colo., rancher, were held in a Long Beach chapel before a microphone which transmitted the services by telephone to the son who could not be moved. Burial will be in Greeley.

GRAND DUKE DIES

DARMSTADT, Germany. (AP)—Grand Duke Ernst Ludwig of Hesse, 68, a kinsman to the House of Windsor through his mother, Alice, daughter of Queen Victoria, died today. The grand duke lost his throne in 1918, when the German revolution swept away crowns and Hesse became a free state.

AWAIT COURT BLACK DECISION

WASHINGTON. (AP)—The supreme court met today for a final conference before its expected announcement Monday concerning Justice Hugo L. Black's right to a seat on the bench.

This was the third secret meeting this week at which the justices discussed pending petitions and agreed whether to review the decisions of lower courts.

Their rulings will be announced Monday—the 65th birthday anniversary of Justice Harlan F. Stone. Two challenges of Justice Black's title to his position, along with litigation involving six Roosevelt administration laws, were included among 300 petitions before the tribunal.

Albert Levitt, former federal judge in the Virgin Islands, and Patrick Henry Kelly, Boston attorney, contested Black's appointment a few minutes after he took his seat last Monday.

Japanese planes continued their bombing activities in various parts of China extending from the Tientsin-Pukow railroad in North China to Canton in South China.

DENIES CLAIMS

A Japanese embassy spokesman denied that Vice-Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa, commander-in-chief of the Japanese third fleet, gave British naval authorities a guarantee that the Hankow-Canton railroad would not be bombed.

The crew of the British cruiser Capetown, 215 officers and men, stranded between Canton and Luchow, 140 miles north on the railroad, have been prevented from reaching Canton. The Capetown is bottled up in the Yangtze river and it had been reported that Hasegawa answered a British protest with a guarantee of safe passage for the cruiser's personnel.

Hasegawa, the spokesman asserted, merely gave assurance that the specific train on which the Capetown's crew was traveling would not be bombed.

Although Chinese foreign observers generally regard Matsui's proclamation as a virtual declaration of war neither native nor English language newspapers accord it much prominence.

CONTROL SANTA PAULA BLAZE

SANTA PAULA. (AP)—A forest fire that swept over 5000 acres caused damage unofficially estimated at $75,000, and threatened to invade Santa Paula was brought under control today.

Late last night the flames were diverted by a shifting wind in the direction of Fillmore and the Bardsdale oil fields.

Four mountain homes were destroyed by the fire, which began on South Mountain. Livestock was killed and citrus property burned over.

At one time yesterday, the flames roared to within a half mile of Santa Paula.

Poison Pancakes Kill Three Men

WINTERS, Calif. (AP)—Pancakes made mistakenly with insecticide were blamed today for the deaths of three migrant tomato pickers on a ranch near here and the violent illness of a dozen others.

Sheriff's Deputy Clifford Garrison said Jim Hines, cook at the J. R. Griffin ranch where the deaths occurred, told him he and an assistant used the poison in the belief it was flour. Hines was detained on an open charge.

Thirty men sat down to breakfast yesterday morning at the ranch. Fifteen of them ate the pancakes. Three of the dozen who continued to be ill today were under treatment at Yolo county hospital.

The three who died were George Martin, 27; Henry Russell Webb, 47, and Oscar Mattison, 65.

DREADS WAR, DIES

LONDON. (AP)—Dread of war was blamed today for the death of Frank Whiffen, 68, who plunged 50 feet from an apartment. His housekeeper said he feared war and believed it was coming Monday.

OFFICER HITS AIRCRAFT MEN

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Maintenance and overhaul of naval aircraft are problems "too frequently neglected by the aircraft builders," the national aircraft production meeting was informed today—and in no uncertain terms.

Straight-from-the-shoulder remarks characterized a paper presented by F. G. Arnold, aeronautical engineer, U. S. naval air station, San Diego.

"The overhaul phase in the life of an airplane is an operation with which the designer is generally unfamiliar," Arnold said.

He also declared naval overhaul organizations are not provided with stress data on the planes they are required to service.

Abduct Girl On Bicycle

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Two teen-age boys were under arrest today after a 15-year-old girl charged they abducted her on a bicycle last night, took her to a secluded spot in Camp Taylor, a suburb, and attacked her.

Mrs. Jennie Vitatow, mother of the girl, also named Jennie, swore out warrants against Orval Yokum, 17, and Arlie Riggs, 16.

RECOVER $30,000 MISSING GEMS

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Of the $100,000 in jewelry reported missing from the home of Mrs. Ella Neville Greenway Stillwell at the time of her death here last Aug. 15, $30,000 worth have been found in a pawn shop.

Mrs. Stillwell was the first wife of Abner J. Stillwell, wealthy Chicago banker. John M. Robinson, counsel for her estate, said private investigators had found the jewels, and that Mrs. Stillwell apparently had obtained a loan on them. Others she might have given away, he said, but a large part of the collection is yet to be accounted for.

FRANCE READY FOR ELECTIONS

PARIS. (AP)—France's bitterly rival political parties drove their cantonal election campaigns to a close today after scattered skirmishes that left one dead and at least 16 wounded.

All the country, except the capital, will vote for local councils tomorrow in elections considered as a test of strength for the Peoples Front which controls the national government.

Fourteen members of Premier Camille Chautemps' cabinet, including Finance Minister Georges Bonnet, Justice Minister Vincent Auriol, Interior Minister Marx Dormoy and more than 280 deputies and senators were among the candidates.

Demonstrations and counter-demonstrations by the Peoples Front and opposition Nationalists caused several campaign clashes.

DIVORCEE'S DAUGHTER

By VIVIAN RADCLIFFE
(Copyright, 1937, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Janice Flagg, daughter of Ogden Flagg, millionaire, has been estranged from him by her mother, divorced from Flagg. After her mother's death, there is a reconciliation, but Janice refuses to accept the protection of his home and money, and sets out to make her own way. Wyldie Greene, playboy, wants to marry her but, when she discovers he is only after her father's millions, she rejects him, and later learns that he has turned his attentions to her spoiled debutante sister, Ivonne. She falls in love with Peter Hathaway, a young professor, and follows him to the Montana mountains to prospect for gold, staking a claim near his. Their only touch with the outside world is through Red Buckner, flying forest ranger. Peter at last tells her he loves her—but does not ask her to marry him. Unexpectedly, Ivonne and Wyldie arrive in her plane. When Janice announces she expects soon to go home to her father, Peter approves—to Janice's dismay, for she had hoped he would change her plans by proposing to her.

CHAPTER XXX

THAT evening, Jan took Peter's hand and led him away from her fireside for a walk in the woods. She knew Wyldie's eyes were enviously following them, but she did not care. Peter was acting so peculiarly, and that statement of his in the afternoon that nothing must keep her from going home to her father needed explanation.

"You love me, Peter?" she asked softly, her arm clinging to his.

"You're such a sweet kid, nobody could help loving you," he replied, eyes looking down and hating the hard work required of him here in the mountains, arranged with Red to take him out that night.

"Don't be silly!" she protested quickly, anyone in her voice.

"I mean it, Jan. Wyldie is crazy about you, and you once thought you loved him. Are you still sure you don't? How do you know that you love me and would be happy if I left you, to make the prosaic life I lead at home?"

"Why, Peter Hathaway?" she exclaimed in surprise.

"Yes! How do you know? You've a chance to go home to your father and lead the carefree sort of life that a girl your age should live."

"Are you trying to send me away from you—to my father?" She paused and faced him, her hand dropping from his arm now.

"I believe that your father's home is where you belong—for the present," he admitted.

"YOU'VE—you've repented your declaration of the other night!" She was angry now.

"No," he hastened to assure her, "but—" He paused.

"Oh, you don't have to struggle to take back what you said! You really said nothing very binding, only kissed me and told me you loved me. You didn't ask me to marry you, so now you can safely back down and be free of me."

"Jan, don't talk that way! I'm thinking of you—not of myself. I'm thinking that you're a young and must go away where you can think things over—can see life clearly. You shouldn't stay on here, anyway. This is no place for a girl."

"Oh, very well. Have it your own way. I don't have to stay here. I can go other places—but I don't have to go home to my father. I've money enough to go on proving that I can take care of myself."

"That's just what you mustn't do!" Peter exclaimed anxiously. "You must go to your father. You must realize that there is where you belong."

"Oh, you don't love me—where you want to get rid of me—you don't care how I feel!" she exclaimed in desperation.

SHE turned from him, blindly stumbling back along the trail toward the camp. She could hear him following her, knew his eyes were upon her, and struggled for self-control. No tears. No matter how her world was tumbling about her, no tears. No showing this man how deeply he had hurt her.

She must hide her hurt, go away from here with chin high. And yes—despite her words just now—she was going to her father. She had to go to him. He would understand all the turmoil in her heart, help her to pick her way through the darkness and unhappiness that had closed about her. She could unburden her heart to him, and find comfort in his love and guidance.

Before she reached the clearing, she had regained her self-control. She slowed her steps until Peter was at her side, then began talking to him casually of the expected arrival, tomorrow, of a mechanic with a plane to repair Ivonne's plane. Peter looked at her with a puzzled expression, as though he could not understand how she could so suddenly put their recent scene behind her.

He did not stop to realize that Jan's mother had been an actress, and that Jan had inherited the ability to play a part when necessary.

THE next afternoon, when Red and the mechanic arrived, it was learned that it would take a few days to get Ivonne's plane repaired. Brad, chafing at the delay and hating the hard work required of him here in the mountains, arranged with Red to take him out that night.

"Mr. Flagg is to be on the air at four o'clock," Red told Jan. "He wants to talk to you and your sister."

"How grand!" Jan exclaimed in delight.

When Red made his contact with his radio, she listened eagerly. A puzzled frown puckered her brow as she heard his opening words.

"Howdy, Mr. Flagg. Yes, everything is going great. Plane will be fixed in a couple of days. Yes, Jan's right here. Miss Ivonne wants to talk to you first, though."

He turned to Ivonne and offered her the mouthpiece and earphones. While Ivonne talked with her father, Jan did not listen. She confronted Red.

"You've talked to my father before this," she accused.

Red nodded. "I knew about you the day before you arrived. Had my orders to keep an eye on you. Jan—and it's been a sweet job. The first time I talked with your father, last spring, I told him flatly that his name didn't mean a darned thing to me, but that I'd keep an eagle eye on you because you reminded me of my sister. From then on, we've been good friends."

Jan could not resent this guardianship that her father had so easily extended to her. She could not be angry at his anxiety for her safety. She smiled at Red.

"You've been a grand friend Red, and I'll not forget our good times together," she assured him and shook his hand warmly.

Then she took the instruments Ivonne was offering her, and spoke to her father over the short waves.

FIGURES HIS WAY OUT Speed Ticket Won't Add Up

Because L. H. McIntire, Newport Beach engineer, felt he couldn't afford to spend five days in jail away from his work, police officers are going to have to spend more time writing out complaints for speeding.

McIntire's appeal from a Tustin justice court sentence was sustained yesterday by Superior Judge James C. Allen, who ruled that a speeding complaint which included "68-45" was not sufficient to show McIntire's speed and the prima facie speed limit.

The engineer was arrested last month by Highway Patrolman Ernest Sawyer, who made out the complaint in that manner. He appealed the case when Justice D. T. Hayden sentenced him to five days in jail for the alleged 68-mile speed.

Officers now must fill the complaints out more completely, alleging the violator's speed and setting forth the state speed limit.

Suit Over Fatal
Dog-Cat Fight
Settled for $10

A small claims suit which followed a dog-cat quarrel several weeks ago in which Miss M. Helene Peterson's dark blue Angora cat "never had a chance" ended without coming to trial yesterday, when Miss Peterson settled for $10 and court costs of $2.75.

Miss Peterson claimed her cat was tied to a clothes line in her yard at 610 Bush street when a bulldog belonging to Mr. and Mrs. William T. White, Jr., Harbor Island, Newport Beach, broke from his leash and attacked the cat.

Her pet, she said, broke its leash and darted for a tree but was overtaken and quickly mangled to death by the dog.

The case ended when White offered her $10 in settlement, after she had refused a $5 settlement several days ago.

Highlights from press row in Ontario's new stadium last night:

The scribes freely discussed how completely ga-ga Santa Ana fans have become over the Dons. . . Undoubtedly the largest caravan in the junior collegians' history wheeled through the Brea canyon to see what looked as a heated struggle turned into a 27-0 rout for Bill Cook's defending champions.

Was Santa Ana exceptionally strong or Chaffey exceptionally weak? The former seemed more true, because Chaffey looked like a real outfit until the two-teams Dons completely wore down Bert Heiser's charges in the second half to score 20 points. . . Some of Chaffey's plays were so deceptive that Ted DeVelbiss, Santa Ana's crack right end, tackled the wrong back on one occasion, and at intervals a fake reverse would result in a pass that would catch the Dons off guard. . . Chaffey certainly will not be the Eastern conference door-mat this season.

Bias Mercurio was nothing short of a riot on offense. . . He personally juggled the ball for Santa Ana's first touchdown in three plays for gains of 4, 13 and 8 yards, and set the Dons in scoring position by tossing a lateral to Larry Timken which gained 12 yards to Chaffey's 33. . . Timken slipped through for 8 yards before the long-legged Mercurio picked up the remaining 25 on three runs.

That dangerous spread formation, introduced by Cook for the first time this season, is going to be a headache to all conference rivals. . . Riverside used it to advantage when Merle (Snakehips) Harris (now at U. C. L. A.) was in the Bengal backfield. . . The Dons alternate with a spread and regular Jones formation.

An ordinary brown ball instead of the customary white one—was used in order not to conflict with Santa Ana's white jerseys. . . The Dons were forced to discard their dazzling red uniforms because Chaffey has switched from blue and gold to red and white, and the home team gets its choice of color.

Cook has two sizzling backfield combinations, with Oliver McCarter and Les McLennan carrying the mail in one, and Bias Mercurio and Larry Timken in the other. The all-around work of Co-Capt. Ed Stanley, Mac Beall, Charley Mueller and some of the others at halfback, of course, help make the ball-carriers look good.

Compton J. C. Loses To Modesto, 7-6

MODESTO, (AP)—Modesto Junior college defeated an invader from Los Angeles county, Compton Junior college, 7 to 6, here last night. A first-quarter pass from Del Irwin to George Perry resulted in a touchdown for Modesto. Warren Gray converted for the extra point.

The Compton fullback, Frishholz, scored in the fourth quarter for his team, but the attempted conversion was blocked.

ORANGE HIGH 13-0 VICTOR OVER TUSTIN

Coach Stewart White's Orange Panthers definitely stamped themselves as the class of Orange county's high school football teams last night when they whipped a stubborn Tustin eleven, 13-0, in the Santa Ana Municipal bowl.

Held scoreless the first period in which they penetrated deep into the Farmers' territory three times but were halted inside the 10-yard line, the Panthers came back in the third and fourth quarters paced by Herb Meyer, who made both Orange touchdowns. Amby Quinn passed to Richard Gunther to the Tustin seven-yard line, but a fourth down pass was incomplete over the goal line. On the next play Vic Linker of Tustin raced 25 yards to his own 45. Retaliating, Quinn intercepted a stray pass and ran down the sidelines to the 31. A pass netted six yards and then Quinn rammed 18 yards to the seven. Three more were made to the four-yard stripe, from which point Meyer powered his way to the first score. Ed Gould's attempted conversion missed fire.

With Nelson Krueger at quarter, Orange took possession on the 40. Gains of 15 and 10 yards and a pass to Bob Reynolds for 12 yards brought the pigskin to the 16. After three plays with Krueger, Meyer and Douglas carrying the ball, Meyer went over for the "six points." Gould's conversion was good for the extra point.

BREA PREPS STOP CITRUS, 31 TO 14

That S. S. (Shorty) Smith's Brea-Orinda Wildcats will be decided threats in the Orange league was clearly apparent yesterday as they chalked up an overwhelming 31 to 14 victory at Citrus High school.

Brea scored two touchdowns in the second, one in the third and two in the fourth, with Quarterback Nelson and Fullback Henderson leading the backfield assault.

GARDEN GROVE TRIPS COMPTON CLUB, 24-6

Quarterback Merle Hapes, brother of Ray Hapes of the University of Mississippi, galloped 70 yards to a touchdown in Garden Grove's 24-6 practice game victory over Compton of the Bay League at Garden Grove yesterday. Hapes scored three touchdowns himself.

Bruins Rely Upon Kenny Washington

PAULO ALTO, (AP)—The Bruins of University of California at Los Angeles, one of the fastest and most powerful outfits ever developed under Veteran Coach Bill Spaulding, expected to hand Stanford its third football licking of the season here today.

Kenny Washington, negro left halfback, was the Bruins' chief weapon two weeks ago as they defeated Oregon, 26 to 13. Oregon beat Stanford last Saturday, 7 to 6.

PHILADELPHIA—Bronko Nagurski, 225, International Falls, Minn., pinned Ray Steele, 215, Glendale, Calif.

SALT LAKE CITY—Ernie Dusek, 225, Omaha, defeated Dick Leaver, 228, Nashville, 31.

Five years ago—Walter Hagen with 69-65 for last two rounds and total of 281 captured $2500 St. Louis open.

Collins' Touchdown Passes Win for Saints Over Oilers, 13 to 7

M'CLURE AND SMITH SCORE FOR S. A. HIGH

Footie's Preps Ready For Citrus Belt Debut With Chaffey

Two neatly-executed passes, fired by Halfback Bill Collins to the Saint ends, netted Santa Ana High school its first football victory, 13 to 7, at the expense of Huntington Beach's preps on Poly field yesterday.

As a result, W. W. (Bill) Footie's Saints were looking forward with increased optimism to the opening of Citrus Belt league competition with Chaffey's Tigers here next Friday afternoon.

SMITH, M'CLURE SCORE Milton Smith, rangy end, pulled a pass down over the goal for an 18-yard gain and the Saints' first touchdown in the second quarter, culminating a drive past mid-field. After George Higashi had returned a punt to Santa Ana's 45, Marvin Webb picked up 5 yards off tackle, and Collins skirted end for a first down on Huntington Beach's 44.

From there, a 14-yard gain around end by diminutive Webb, and a lateral from Webb to Jack McClure to Ralph Pagenkopp featured a drive to the Oilers' 19. A fumbled lateral gained a yard to the 18, from where the Saints executed their touchdown pass. The conversion was no good, 6 to 0.

McClure, giant left end who holds down first base in varsity baseball, tucked a 17-yard pass from Collins under his arm on Huntington Beach's 25-yard line and rammed across the goal for Santa Ana's second touchdown at the start of the fourth quarter. It was the prettiest play of the afternoon, with McClure escaping the clutches of three Oilers' secondary men. Collins plunged over right guard for the extra point, and the Saints sported a comfortable lead, 13 to 0.

Oiler chances faded in the third quarter when Coach Alvin Reboin lost his ace back, Tatsuo Kato, with an elbow injury. But two other backs, Curtis and Freeman, combined their efforts for a touchdown and conversion for the Oilers late in the game.

WOLF RECOVERS PUNT Collins of the Saints intercepted a pass on his own 41. A blocked punt, however, was recovered by Wolfe, Oliver reserve, who raced to Santa Ana's 6-yard line before being brought to earth. Freeman lost 13 yards after receiving a lateral, but finally caught a short pass over the right side of the line from Curtis for the score. Another pass by the same boys chalked up the extra point, 13 to 7.

The Saints played the entire game without the services of their fullback, Bill Musick, who was favoring a charley horse. . . Collins was a pleasant surprise at running, passing and punting. . . Santa Ana's forwards held up well, as did those of Huntington Beach.

Lineups: Santa Ana (13) Pos. (7) Hunt, Strickland, B. Webb, LT, Beck, Mercado, LG, Clinton, Warhurst, LG, Bob Thomas, Horton, RT, Ray Thomas, Lott, R, L. Gifford, Pagenkopp, Q, L. Morse, Collins, LB, Kato, M. Webb, RB, Freeman, Robinson, E, Scott

Score by Quarters: Santa Ana 0 0 7 13 Huntington Beach 0 0 0 7—13

Substitutions: Santa Ana—Higashi, Barron, Hamaker, Piper, Herman, Sawyer, Ashen, Dunning. Huntington Beach—R. Cowling, H. Gifford, Oka, Henry, Rohrig, Pinkham, Curtis, Putnam, Van Loan, Wolf, Law.

TEXANS TRIM LOYOLA, 7-0

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—The hard-driving cowboys from Hardin-Simmon college, through a perfectly-executed lateral, held a 7 to 0 victory today over the Loyola university football team.

The Texans scored in the first quarter, Eldon Mahuron, halfback, flipping a lateral pass to McKinney who dashed 65 yards to cross the goal. A sub halfback, Jack Hindricks, converted.

Loyola, too, put in some gridiron legwork, once getting to their opponents' 10-yard line. An unsuccessful field goal broke up every menacing gesture of the Lions by stiffening or intercepting passes.

The game was played under the floodlight last night at Gilmore stadium before an overflow crowd of 18,500.

Hoag Forced at Home Plate, But Yankees Win, 5 to 1

With the bases loaded in the second inning of the third game of the World Series, Frank Crosetti, Yankee shortstop, hit into a force play, with Mel Ott throwing to Giant Catcher Harry Danning for the out. Leftfielder Myril Hoag is shown sliding into home plate, where he was out. The Yankees defeated the Giants 5 to 1 for their third straight World Series victory.

M'MASTERS WILL OFFICIATE LUTZE-BAXTER MAT FEUD

"Wee Mickey" McMasters, the hustling little wrestling referee who has been handling matches at Hollywood and other mat centers of the Southland, returns to Orange County Athletic club's regular Monday night to referee the regular weekly program which will feature Nick Lutze, prime favorite hereabouts, and "Badman" LaVerne Baxter.

Baxter and Lutze clash in a two-out-of-three-fall match that should just about result in a civil war, with Baxter carrying on the wild tactics that has made him a much-feared wrestler, and Nick employing scientific holds and leverage to offset the caveman tactics of his adversary.

Late yesterday Lutze appeared before the state athletic commission and asked Chief Inspector Willie Ritchie to assign McMasters which was granted. Today the club was notified and Bill Smith contacted McMasters, telling him to report to the highway 101 arena for duty Monday. Lutze in making his protest asserted that he was given the worst of it in his match here with Ignacio Martinez and desired a different referee.

Martinez draws one of the toughest foes of his career in another three-fall, one-hour time limit match when he meets Casey Colombo, a grappler of the Lutze order and a man who ran up more than 10 consecutive victories before local mat followers two years ago before losing to Vincent Lopez, then the recognized world titleholder.

Pat Riley and Pat Riley clash in another three-fall match, all to be refereed by McMasters.

With overwhelming triumphs over St. Mary's and Oregon State behind them, the Bears expected little trouble from the less-expected Cougars who won last year's game, 14 to 13.

Score 20 Points in Last Period

Another Santa Ana Junior college football victory was credited to the reserve strength today, as the Dons, looking more like the replicas of the 1936 Southern California powerhouse champions, lashed out in true championship style in the second half to bury Chaffey's Panthers, 27 to 0, at Ontario last night. It marked the opening of the Eastern J. C. conference season.

For three-quarters the Don-Panther battle ran true to the precedent, with the Dons holding a 7-0 edge after Bias Mercurio had fought his way eight yards for the first touchdown in the second period. Running in the best men he could during the tilt, Coach Bert Heiser found the Dons' two-team combination scoring three touchdowns in the final 15 minutes.

SCORELESS FIRST QUARTER Instead of being a battle between two highly powerful elevens, the joust turned out to be an inter-club battle between Coach Bill Cook's potential 1937 Eastern J. C. conference titlists to see which of the two could net the most scores.

With Oliver McCarter and Les McLennan doing most of the leather lugging from their quarter and fullback posts and Mac Beall and Co-Capt. Ed Stanley at the blocking halfback position, the Dons were held to a scoreless first quarter. An entire new team took the field in the next one, with Bias Mercurio and Larry Timken at the key posts.

This light but faster crew engineered the touchdown lead that bewildered Chaffey. One score was narrowly missed in the third when Larry Timken was held at the one-foot line by the stubborn Chaffey forwards.

When the final touchdown was marked up, it broke all precedent. Never since the two squads have been meeting in the past eight years has one beaten the other by more than two touchdowns. Coach Cook, determined to pore everything his Dons had against the Panthers, refused to relieve the regulars until McCarter had smashed his way over five minutes left to play in the game. Third stringers then were shoved in and lacked seconds of scoring another touchdown.

Mercurio started the first touchdown march with a 63-yard return of kick by Studler. Reaching Chaffey's 47, Mercurio reeled off five over right end. He then tried left end, reaching the 41 and then laterally the pigskin to Timken, who rammed to the 33 for a first down. Timken found McCarter for seven yards and Mercurio barely missed a first down. The flashy quarter banged right guard for a yard, bringing the ball to rest on the 22 for a first down. A left end skirl brought the ball to the eight, from where Mercurio scrambled right through the forward wall and the defensive backfield for the marker. Co-Capt. Erwin Youel converted the extra point with a kick.

HELP ON 1 FT. LINE At the very end of the third quarter, Timken made his unsuccessful attempt at cracking the Chaffey line, but was held at the one-foot mark. The drive was started by an interception of Chaffey's pass by Danny Boyd, who played a bangup game at center and running guard. With Timken doing most of the lugging, the ball was carried down to the one-yard line before the unsuccessful attempt.

The "first-stringers," headed by McCarter and McLennan, were rushed in and the next score resulted off the kick out of bounds on the 30. After McCarter kicked, giving the ball to Red and Bias Mercurio, who crossed everybody up with a spectacular run to Chaffey's 10, netting 13 yards. On the first play, McCarter tore off his own left tackle and proceeded right on to the goal. His conversion kick was no good, 13-0.

Less than four minutes after that, the Dons had their third touchdown. McNeel quick-kicked, giving the ball to Red and Bias Mercurio, who crossed everybody up with a spectacular run to Chaffey's 10, netting 13 yards. On the first play, McCarter tore off his own left tackle and proceeded right on to the goal. His conversion kick was no good, 13-0.

Everybody but Hubbell is moaning about Carlo's second start in four games. Carlo doesn't moan. He sticks to the old fashioned idea that pitching is his business. No matter how much his efforts cost him, the greatest lefthander of his day keeps punching.

The speculators took a bad beating, yesterday. All of them found a large supply of tickets of all prices on their hands when the umpire shouted "play ball" and at the end of the first inning a $5.50 ticket could be bought for $2.50, after the second inning for $2 and after the third inning, a purchaser could call his own price.

Frankie Crosetti vows he'll work the hidden ball trick, first used by Pharoah's boys in the old Pyramid league, on the Giants yet. "One more step and Moore would have been a dead duck Thursday," he boasted.

"Yeah," said Pat Malone, "and by tomorrow there will be a lotta dead ducks in the Giants' clubhouse."

The Giants outfield play is shoddy. Ripple forgot the Cardinals 40 over left end, and then lateraled to McCarter, who went clear to the 18 for a first down, the play going for 35 yards. McLennan made three. McCarter made it a first down through left tackle to the two-yard line. Chaffey, after recovering a fumble, the Dons made it to the 2-foot line, from which point McLennan packed it over. McLennan converted the extra point from placement.

After taking the ball for their fourth try, Chaffey pointed out to their own 48. McLennan made nine and Beall hit center for two and first down. McCarter made one at right end and then after an incomplete pass, banged right tackle for 11 and a first on the 25. McLennan, on successive plays, made nine yards and McCarter crossed the Panthers up with a perfect strike to Beall, who went to the nine and a first down. McLennan chalked up eight yards, and then McCarter, crashed through for the final score, 27-0.

Midway in the third quarter, Youel hawked a fumbled ball and fell on it on the four-yard line, but a Santa Ana penalty for offside nullified the play. . . Wilson's long run was the most spectacular all evening and brought considerable praise from Bill Cook and Blanchard Beatty.

O'Brien, Blondell
In Broadway Film

"Back in Circulation," an engrossing newspaper drama with Pat O'Brien and Joa Blondell in the starring roles, has its local premiere at the Broadway theater today.

During the dramatic murder trial, the girl reporter succeeds in unearthing information that puts a different and astounding light on the situation.

Home Service Teen-age Etiquette; Guide to Popularity

What's in a Kiss? How smart are you when your latest beau asks you for a good-night kiss?

You'll keep his admiration and not hurt his feelings if you can say, laughingly, "Forget it for tonight, Tom."

Better yet, dodge the question altogether with a gay final word about the steak fry next Saturday or the tricky new dance step you've agreed to practice together.

But don't devote all your time to the man of the hour. Show you know your way around by winning lots of friends.

When you meet new people, introductions are important. Remember to introduce a young person to an older one of the same sex, a boy to a girl. "Dad, may I introduce Tom Wilson?" "Mary Smith, this is Tom Wilson."

And when you're the one being introduced to some new one, all you need say is "How do you do?"

Our 32-page booklet gives you all the rules you need for fun at formal parties, restaurants, theaters, entertaining at home. Introductions, invitations. Automobiles, travel.

Send 10c for your copy of Etiquette for Young Moderns to The Journal, Home Service, 117 East Fifth street, Santa Ana. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

TO SHOW 'MY MAN GODFREY'

Public demand brings back William Powell's triumph, "My Man Godfrey," which opens tomorrow for a three-day engagement at the State theater, along with "I Promise to Pay," featuring Chester Morris and Leo Carrillo, and chapter 6 of "Roaring West."

"My Man Godfrey" is a gay, debonair modern comedy. The story relates the adventures of William Powell, a butler in the delightfully dizzy Bullock family. One daughter, played by Carole Lombard, falls in love with him. Her sister tries to have him jailed. The maid falls in love with him too. The mother likes him, but has a parlor pet of her own. The cast includes Alice Brady, Gail Patrick, Jean Dixon, Eugene Pallette, and Robert Light.

The highly dramatic story of what happened to a young fellow who borrowed from the loan sharks in order to bring vacation happiness to his family—that's Columbia's expose of the loan-shark racket, "I Promise to Pay."

Chester Morris, Helen Mack, Leo Carrillo and Thomas Mitchell top what might be termed an all star cast. Thornton Hall and John Galand give splendid support.

WALKER OFFERS DOUBLE LAUGH

Tonight for the last time, Walker's theater will show the "double-laugh" program which includes Jack Oakie and Ann Sothern in "Super Sleuth" and Joe E. Brown in "Riding on Air." A colored cartoon and a newsreel completes the program which will have a complete showing after 9:30 tonight.

In "Super Sleuth," Oakie plays the part of a screen detective with inflated ego who is held in check by Miss Sothern, as the studio's press agent.

Joe E. Brown enacts the role of Elmer Lane, a small town correspondent for a big city newspaper, in "Riding on Air" and creates a series of humorous situations found only in Brown's pictures.

REPORTS PROWLER Mrs. H. E. Nelson, 2327 Bonnie Brae drive, reported a prowler in that neighborhood last night.

I just found out. Messenger Boy Is Joker's Friend

By MILLARD BROWNE

A practical joker's best friend is his telegraph boy. But either the jokers don't realize it, or else they figure they can't afford the price of such outside assistance for their gags.

Messenger boys at Santa Ana's two telegraph agencies—Western Union and Postal Telegraph—stand ready to deliver most anything, for a consideration. Their calls, nevertheless, are primarily of an errand nature, and it is only rarely that they are used as middle-men between joker and victim.

One of the better tricks on local record caught a prominent service club member completely off his guard. A "pal" wrote out a wire, filed it at a telegraph office, and it was promptly delivered to the friend during a club luncheon.

It informed him his Irish sweepstakes ticket had been drawn for a $50,000 horse. The story is that he actually had a pair of sweepstakes tickets, and very nearly didn't recover from the blow when he learned it was a hoax.

Most recent gag originated in The Journal's editorial office, of all places. It was a request for a telegraph boy to deliver a live duck to a honeymooning couple in a San Francisco hotel at 1:30 one a. m. It flabbergasted local company officials, also the victim's (sport editor and wife.) The duck was delivered with due ceremony, later converted into duck soup.

Not such a gag, though it seemed like one to the delivery boys, was the former request of some mothers for a telegraph boy to wheel their babies for an hour or so while they went shopping.

The delivery kids finally balked at this, however, after numerous "ribbings" from friends who passed by.

They still graciously walk dogs for cramped apartment-dwellers, though.

Peddling of routine telegrams or parcels is rather complicated at times. Boys have had to make deliveries to linemen working on telephone poles, on occasion, and once or twice they've even climbed part way up the pole with a telegram.

All wires must be delivered in person, and sometimes the boys have had a merry chase. One had moved four times since he'd left the address given on the wire. He finally was traced to Stockton and the telegram was taken to him there.

When most people celebrate holidays, telegraph boys work all the harder. Particularly on such days as Christmas, Easter, Mother's day.

'38 MELODIES' SHOW HERE

Hollywood's newest stars, Robert Taylor and Eleanor Powell, are teamed again in the musical romance, "Broadway Melody of 1938," which opens at Walker's theater tomorrow for three days. A program of selected short subjects will be included in the bill.

When the two players were teamed for the first time in the 1936 "Melody," they were both newcomers to the screen, but each in record time reached stardom.

Both sing and dance as well as act in the new musical which is said to surpass both "Born to Dance" and "The Great Ziegfeld." The supporting cast gathered from stage, screen and radio, includes George Murphy, Binnie Barnes, Buddy Ebsen, Sophie Tucker, Judy Garland, Charles Igor Gorin, Raymond Walburn, Robert Benchley, Willie Howard, Charles Grapewin and Robert Willard.

Hollywood Sights and Sounds

—By—
ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD.—Dorothy Arzner is getting sick and tired of being "Hollywood's only woman director."

To women and girls everywhere she says in effect: "Come on in, the water's fine!"

Seriously, the slight short-haired woman of the tailored suits and quiet manner is convinced that the next few years will see many more women becoming movie directors.

"Directing motion pictures," she says, "offers a fascinating career to women who are willing to devote their entire attention to studying every phase of picture-making. Direction as a profession should appeal to talented women as greatly as the law, or medicine. The courses of preparation are correspondingly long, and the rewards well worth the effort."

THE FIELD'S WIDE OPEN

Miss Arzner herself went through a seven-year apprenticeship as secretary, script clerk, cutter and writer before she was entrusted with her first film. That was 10 years ago. Since then she has been one of the colony's leading directors, and has commanded the film work of stars from Esther Ralston and Clara Bow to the present-day luminaries, Katharine Hepburn and Joan Crawford.

"There are no reasons why women should not succeed as producers and directors," she declares. "Many have earned distinction in other creative movie fields, as scenarists, costume designers, dance directors and film cutters."

FOUR WOMEN PRODUCERS

Miss Arzner asks no concessions in working hours or conditions because of her sex. When doing a man's job she expects to meet the same hardships and strenuous demands of the post.

She thinks it is encouraging that, while Hollywood has had only four women producers in its history, all four have reached executive rank in recent years. She refers to Frances Marion, the scenarist-producer; Dorothy Doy, export Reid, widow of the silent film star Wallace Reid; Irene Schreck, who gained her executive training as secretary to a studio manager; and Fanchon (of Fanchon and Marco) who first directed dance numbers for films and now produces her own pictures.

Mrs. William Almas of Laguna Beach returned this week from a five-month trip to Canada. She visited her father in Beechburg and friends in Toronto and Montreal.

E. P. Kittle, who has been visiting in the East with relatives for the past three months, returned to his home at 1106 Spurgeon street this week. He visited in four states, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York, while he was gone.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Flint, Mr. and Mrs. Braden Finch, and Mr. and Mrs. Milan Miller made up a party traveling to Ontario last night for the Santa Ana jaysee-Chaffey game.

Superior Judge G. K. Scovel and Mrs. Scovel left today for a vacation in the San Francisco area.

'ZENDA' NOW AT WEST COAST

Romance and adventure are the keywords of "The Prisoner of Zenda," action-packed production based on the famous Anthony Hope romance, which is the current attraction at the West Coast theater along with a second feature, "Women Men Marry."

Handsome Ronald Colman has the leading role, supported by Madeleine Carroll, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Mary Astor, C. Aubrey Smith, Raymond Massey, David Niven and others. Colman plays a dual role, appearing both as the adventurous Rudolf Rassendyll and as King Rudolf V, the monarch he impersonates.

Miss Carroll appears as the lovely Princess Flavia, while young Fairbanks is cast as the dashing Rupert of Hentzau. The fast-moving story tells of the complications which arise when an adventurous young man dares to double for a king.

Newspaper headlines which led to the exposure and curbing of gangster activities, again have provided the theme for "Women Men Marry," featuring George Murphy and Josephine Hutchinson, which brings to light the inner workings of a mystic cult through which trusting persons were robbed of millions of dollars. Short subjects include a cartoon and World News events.

Comedy Drama Coming to State

A gripping story of love, conflict and sacrifice, played against the colorful background of the early gold "diggings" in California, "The Outcasts of Poker Flat," comes to the screen on a double bill program at the State theater Wednesday and Thursday. The second feature stars Hugh Herbert in the comedy-romance "That Man's Here Again."

Preston Foster and Jean Muir head the cast in "The Outcasts of Poker Flat," with Van Heflin, Irving Virginia Weider, Margaret Little, Frank M. Thomas, Dick Elliott, Monte Blue and other well known players in important roles.

The second feature, "That Man's Here Again," is a delightful comedy romance of boy-and-girl love. Tom Brown and beautiful seventeen-year-old Mary Maguire have the juvenile leads with Hugh Herbert as a middle-aged and eccentric art collector.

Bette Davis On West Coast Bill

The absorbing story of a woman's fight to live down the past and win back the love that past had cost is told in "That Certain Woman," which will open at the West Coast theater next Wednesday, it was announced today by Manager George King.

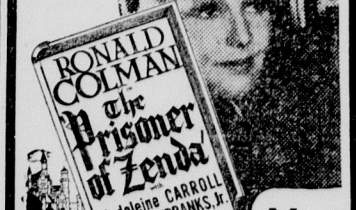

A great cast, headed by Bette Davis, Henry Fonda, Ina Hunter and Anita Louise, is featured in "That Certain Woman," an emotional story of regeneration, dramatic in its intensity.

Second attraction will be "The Game That Kills," a drama told against the background of an icy hockey championship fight. It features the new star, Charles Quigley, with Rita Hayworth and J. Farrell MacDonald.

Informal Tea Compliments Visitor

Pleasant informality was achieved yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Braden Finch entertained at tea, complimenting Mr. Finch's mother, Mrs. Morton Finch, visiting here from Memphis, Tenn. Those who gathered to meet the visitor were seated in the zinnia-filled livingroom of the Finch home on North Flower street, where tea was served by Mrs. Frances Finch, daughter of the house, and by Mrs. Calvin Flint, who assisted during the afternoon.

Many lovely flowers had been sent Mrs. Finch by Mrs. Charles F. Smith, and these were used in bowls throughout the home. Guests invited to meet Mrs. Finch were Mrs. Lloyd Chenoweth, Mrs. Enry D. White, Mrs. Milton McMurray, Mrs. Brad Hellis, Mrs. Ada Hellis, Miss Gertrude Hellis, Mrs. Roy Browning, Mrs. J. Frank Burke, Mrs. Loyal King, Miss Rosa Boyd.

Elftstrom, Mrs. John P. Scripps, Mrs. Lowry McClanahan of La Jolla, Mrs. Dexter Ball and Mrs. Harry Westover.

WEDDING PLANS TOLD AT FAMILY PARTY

Wedding plans of Nov. 19 for Miss Annette Louise Howell and Idus Harper, Jr., were revealed to the immediate families and close friends of the couple at a surprise announcement party in the Hubert R. Howell home, 1114 Oak street, Thursday evening.

Special guests at the evening were the Rev. and Mrs. C. F. Martin, the pastor of the Advent Christian church in Tustin, who will perform the formal nuptial rites in November.

When the guests arrived at the home in the evening, it was supposed for a double wedding celebration in honor of Mrs. Harry Hanson and Miss Anna Howell. At first the decorations in autumn colors and three angelic cakes holding white tapers and green tulle bows carried out birthday motif. Later the guests found a tiny bride and groom scene under a white-flowered arch centering the dining table, and then discovered placecards with snapshots of the young couple along with the date, Nov. 19.

Miss Howell is a popular Santa Ana girl, a graduate of Santa Ana high school and Junior college. Her fiancé is a graduate of Tustin high school and is associated with the Spratt Optical company.

Heading the list of guests who heard the romantic news, was Mrs. Harshel Farnell, Miss Anna Howell, Miss Alice Howell, Rodger Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert R. Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hanson, Miss Jean Mulbar, Miss Ruth Lee and LeRoy (Chub) Sears.

Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ebell, Mr. and Mrs. Harshel Farnell, Miss Anna Howell, Miss Alice Howell, Rodger Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert R. Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hanson, Miss Jean Mulbar, Miss Ruth Lee and LeRoy (Chub) Sears.

GARDEN STUDY GROUP HAS LUNCHEON

The lovely ranch home of Mrs. Holmes Bishop was setting yesterday afternoon for the October meeting of Garden Study club. Members and guests gathered first in the shady wisteria arbor, where a delicious luncheon was served by Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. F. H. Cloyes, Mrs. Carl Strock, Mrs. Frank B. Miller, and Mrs. J. C. Coombs, hostesses for the day.

Later they adjourned for the afternoon program, which was commenced by an interesting talk on "This Month in the Garden," given by Mrs. E. M. Redmond.

After a delightful group of garden songs rendered by Mrs. Bishop, who was accompanied by a guest, Mrs. Ethel Mansfield, the featured speaker of the day, John Manning, was introduced.

Mr. Manning, connected with the Coolidge gardens, gave a stimulating talk on flowering shrubs, particularly devoting his time to study of varieties of hibiscus. His talk was augmented by dozens of illustrative blossoms.

Besides the 32 members present were four guests, Mrs. Roy Horton, Mrs. Mabel Isaacson, Mrs. A. H. Bradley, and Mrs. Mansfield.

SOUTHEAST GROUP TO MEET

The country home of Mrs. R. J. Brown will be scene of a meeting of the Southeast section of the ladies' aid of the First Presbyterian church Thursday afternoon, when the group meets for a covered dish luncheon.

Those not wearing housedresses will be subject to fines, and each member is to bring her "growing-dime," as well as a covered dish and table service. Mrs. W. C. Vieira at 4697-W is in charge of transportation.

Chat Awhile With Betty

ONE ON A PAIR OF SIAMESE KITTENS

Conjecture's rife in social strata concerning one intriguing matter. The dainty shades of pink and blue, (Whatever you many think and do.) Raise eyebrows when applied to cat-ta.

And when a bassinet's delivered in colors deli-cat, Allegedly for kittens, methinks I smell-a-rat.

Both pussies and furniture made their appearance at 1915 North Flower street this week, although not simultaneously. And the lady of the house does say, giggling most becomingly, that the bassinet's for the kittens. (Names: Wishy and Washy.)

Everyone's getting properly excited about fancy dress these days, what with at least one costume gig coming up. It seems that the country club is staging a sort of Halloween open house (open to guests) to raise money for redecorating. Scheduled for two weeks from tonight, it sounds like pretty much fun.

Everyone's to dress up, whether it be beautifully or ridiculously, and there'll be prizes and such. Beforehand, though, there's to be a good old-fashioned box social, with each housewife bringing a boxed supper, and donating it to the cause. Then they'll all be raffled off.

What I'd like to know, though, is—are they going to follow the old custom of bundling days, and write the name of each contributor on her own box? If so, then the purchaser would dine with the one who fixed up his lunch, whether introductions had been made or not. And that ought to lead to all sorts of amusing situations, particularly since everyone will be in costume.

Anyway, most everyone is marking a big circle around the 23rd, I notice.

Just two days before that, on Thursday night, is Comus club's formal dinner dance, also at the Country club. And because the two affairs are to be so totally different in mood, the committees are getting together to plan clubhouse decorations.

The Ernest Goulds (she's particularly artistic), the William Penns, the Larry Camerons, and the LeCombes, representing Comus, will cooperate with the Bob Fernandezes, the Riley Hubers, the Roy Langleys, and the Eddie Holmeses (of the C.C.) in making the place a knockout. I'm told.

So it sounds as if a gay weekend is in store.

Have heard tell that Lawrence Benis is on the sick list—and Fritz Elliott is still far from well. Next week our pome will be dedicated to them (which is threat enough to make them take up their beds and walk).

That 24 hours of polishing that Leila Deardorff put in on her silver saddle before the Bakersfield Pioneer celebration last week really was worth it all—because yesterday her brother, Gene Thomas, returned with her beautiful horse, "Reina." And a gorgeous two-foot gold cup she'd won! The only Orange county horse to make a showing—but she came home with the big trophy of the day.

While we're still in the animal division, the duck (Donald) that John Scripps received on his birthday has the two family dogs completely cowed (excuse that, please). He waddles serenely around the yard on Heltrope drive, complete suzerain of his new domain.

Our prognostication of a month ago was born out this week with the appearance of formal cards announcing the engagement of Lois Courtney and Elmer Osterman.

All sorts of vacationing still going on: the Gerald Paxtons leaving for a Colorado jaunt—the Walter Spicers dashing madly to wait for a suddenly inspired New York holiday—the Nevell Moores off somewhere—Horace and Leona Leeling back from an eastern holiday—that attractive grandmother, mother, and daughter trio, Mrs. Clara Duggan, Mrs. Roscoe Hewitt, and Mrs. Frank Hillgass, returning from a drive to Salt Lake and the Mortimer Plums still absent.

Epidemic of the week: Of a certainty—it's going high-hat. Never saw so many startling chapeaux in my life as at Junior Ebell the other night. Mildred Spicer still remains the most striking exponent of the rage.

Although—wait a minute—veils run a close second to the towering idea. Ruth Newman looked especially lovely in her black number that exploited both fashions.

Seen here and there: Marian Loerch (after an absence of many months no one knows where) striding along the street in a crisp print, and wearing dark glasses; Doris Jordan knitting on tiny garments for the Violet and Snooks Horton baby trousseau;

Becky Bacon, Betty Lindemeyer, and Molly Harvey in a spirited golf match; Beata Mead, lovely as ever, in a grey caracul jacket; the Lyman Farwells hosting a steak bake at the park; Mrs. Leonard Swales calmly whipping up an apple pie to ward off her fears of a santana; Mrs. A. G. Flag, likewise dubious about the weather, worrying about the thousand and one plants that are to constitute her annually famous garden; Leslie Steffensen convulsing an audience with his reading of Mrs. Frank Was's amusing "How to Write a Play."

Proud moment of the week: being given a gift copy of the little volume of lovely poems that Mina Shafer and Beulah May have just compiled, all of their own composition, and all of intense interest, and beauty.

Flash: Eloise Hiskey, Orange county's representative girl at the Salinas Rodeo this year, pledged Theta, the tops in Greek letters at U. S. C.

Florence Nalle, back from a northern vacation, reports that the offspring of Katie and Ed Adams is going to be a blonde with blue eyes. Her original dark mop is fast changing. They may possibly pay a quick visit to Santa Ana within the next few weeks. Katie's parents, the Ira Owensens, are having a 40th anniversary Monday, and the children are contemplating a flying trip to Phoenix to congratulate them. If so, Katie will join up with Kathleen Owens Howard (Mrs. H. J.), and Harriet Owens Enderle (Mrs. Maurice) in driving across the desert.

And did you know that Ed Hall plays polo every Sunday at Riviera with Spencer Tracy, Buddy Rogers and Walt Disney? Ahem. The Halls and the Wilbur Barrs are to be week-end guests of Joey Barr's sister and brother-in-law, the Lieut. James Pahls of San Diego, this week-end.

Amusing incident of the week: Mrs. R. A. McMahon desperately trying to clean her glasses in order to read this and that for the assembled Woman's club—and then discovering they weren't her glasses after all, her own being securely tucked away in her purse.

Sincere condolences to Katharine McDaniel, who lost her grandmother this week.

In case any of you have missed the silver-voiced joy of the airways these past few days, I'll eleven-thirty over KVOE, it's just that she didn't want to give any competition to the World Series broadcasts. If the Yanks pick today, though, we'll be back with you again Tuesday at the usual hour.

See you next Saturday!

BETTY GUILD

VISALIANS INSPIRE AFFAIR TONIGHT

Two popular visitors in town this week-end are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kornder of Visalia, who are dividing their time between friends and relatives. Mrs. Kornder will be remembered as Miss Lillian Rutherford.

This evening a little group of old school friends has planned a dinner at the Berrydale ranch house, and later will return to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wolven for cards.

In the group honoring the Kornders will be Mr. and Mrs. Wolven, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Deardorff, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Turner Milton, and Mr. and Mrs. John Gould.

GROUP HEARS TALK ON EUROPEAN TRIP

Mrs. Clarence Skiles entertained her contract club at a pleasant affair yesterday afternoon, with additional interest centered on interesting accounts of their summer European tour given by Miss Effie Douglas and Miss Barbara Ward, the latter a guest of the club.

Dessert was served at small tables centered with crystal bowls, autumn-hued chrysanthemums, and later contract was played.

In the group were Mrs. Lawrence Wakeham, Mrs. William Armstrong, Mrs. E. P. Rogers, Mrs. F. Smith, Miss Mina Smith, Miss Effie Douglas, Mrs. C. D. Hindley, Mrs. C. E. Dessery, Miss Pauline Carsons, Miss Margaret Orr, and Miss Mary Wakeham.

NEWLYWEDS TO RESIDE HERE

Planning to honeymoon for the next month at Pocatello, Idaho, Anna Smith of Vista, Calif., and F. W. Stroschein of Santa Ana, were wed at quiet rites performed Thursday evening in the bridegroom's home, 2220 Greenleaf street.

The Rev. Kenneth L. Ahl of Orange St. John's Lutheran church performed the ceremony, at which Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Knaak of Orange were witnesses.

New Contract Section Is Formed

Organizing a group which promises to become one of the most active in Ebell affairs, 20 ladies gathered in the Ebell clubhouse yesterday for a one o'clock dessert followed by the first session of the new Contract Bridge section.

Mrs. S. A. Jones, leader of the new section, was joined by Mrs. C. A. Bach and Mrs. W. F. Waddell in hosting the group. Guests were seated at small tables centered with bowls of yellow marigolds and purple sage for the dessert course, following which Mrs. Jones led the group in a business meeting to plan details for organization.

At 2 o'clock, the new teacher, Mrs. Nell M. Hunt arrived to take charge, directing the section in the first lesson. The E. Waddell as completely filled now, with a waiting list already scheduled. Two guests, Mrs. Ralph Snedley and Mrs. Charles Carothers, were present at yesterday's meeting to take the places of Mrs. Herbert Krahling and Mrs. Bessie Mize, who were unable to be present.

The next meeting of the new section is scheduled for Nov. 12, when Mrs. Charles Bowman, Mrs. J. L. McBride, and Mrs. F. A. Burkett will collaborate as co-hostesses.

Those present for yesterday's initial session besides the two guests were Mrs. S. A. Jones, Mrs. F. E. Moore, Mrs. J. C. Burke, Mrs. F. L. Duggan, Mrs. Walter Hiskey, Mrs. A. Thordike, Mrs. J. L. McBride, Mrs. W. F. Waddell, Mrs. C. A. Bach, Mrs. Perry Lewis, Mrs. W. W. Kays, Mrs. J. L. Marshall, Mrs. Charles Bowman, Mrs. L. E. Allen, Mrs. S. A. Moore, Mrs. F. A. Burkett, Mrs. W. E. Dixon, and Mrs. John Harrison.

MRS. VALLEY WILL GIVE REVIEW MONDAY

The initial appearance of Mrs. Jack Valley since summer recess at Ebell club is being greatly anticipated by members of the organization, who will hear her give her usual monthly book review at current event analysis this coming Monday afternoon.

Choosing as her theme "The Situation Is Hopeless But Not Desperate," a motto of Old Vienna, she will review the following list of publications:

"The Far East Comes Nearer" (Hesselt Tiltman); "Can China Survive?" (Abend and Billingham); "400 Million Customers" (Carl Crow); "Japanese Lady in Europe" (Haruko Ishikawa); "Little Golden America" (Ilya Ili and Eugene Petrov); "Small Talk" (Harold Nicolson); "He Did Not Die at Meyerling" ("R" and Henry Lanier); "The Education of Hyman Kaplan" (Leonard Q. Ross); "The Seven Who Flew" (Frederick Prokosh); "Katrina" (Sally Salminen); "Oleander River" (G. B. Stern); and "Brynild" (H. G. Wells).

CLUB GATHERS TO MEET FORMER RESIDENT

Affording an opportunity to introduce her sister from South Dakota to her group of friends, Mrs. Oscar Carothers entertained her bridge club at her home, 1130 South Birch street, Thursday evening.

Mrs. Chesley Lander of Huron, S. D., was a former resident of Santa Ana, and the group of friends enjoyed renewing acquaintances with her. They enjoyed an afternoon of bridge, with prizes going to Mrs. Clyde Patton and Mrs. James Dickson. At the close of the afternoon, the guests were seated at a dining table prepared with dainty linens and centered with a bowl of button chrysanthemums in various shades.

Present to renew old friendships were Mrs. H. R. Carnahan, Mrs. Clifford Brock, Mrs. Raymond Marsile, Mrs. Willard Swinburn, Mrs. James Dickson, and Mrs. Clyde Patton.

MANY ATTEND PYTHIAN AFFAIR

Nearly 200 people were served at a potluck supper which preceded a regular meeting of the Pythian Sisters of Tustin Thursday evening. The K. P. hall and dinner tables were beautifully decorated with fall flowers, and visitors from Pomona, Los Angeles, Long Beach, San Pedro, Huntington Park, and Anaheim were present.

Mrs. Beulah Hamilton presided over the affair, of which Mrs. Bertha Trickey was chairman. On the committee were Dr. Estelle Workman, Mrs. Edith Matthews, Mrs. Sarah May Matthews, and Mrs. Mae Martin.

MOTHERS FORM STUDY GROUP

A series of four study classes was inaugurated by mothers of the Franklin school this week, when 30 women gathered at the school under the leadership of Miss Nell Hunt of the kindergarten.

Subject for the day was "What Shall We Eat?" and budget menus were discussed. The first grade pupils gave a play on health.

Picturesque Brides

When Miss Betty Ryherd, on the left, became the bride of Albert Markel Wednesday morning, she wore the quaintly styled frock and veil that had been worn by her mother and by her sister at their weddings. The Markels will make their home in Santa Ana.

Bouffant satin formed the gown of Miss Mabel Pruitt, on the right, when she was married last Friday evening in the church of St. Mary of the Angels in Hollywood to Joseph Berthelet, a former classmate at the University of Southern California.

Mary Stoddard Nagging Husband Beats Wife, Throws Furniture, and Swears at Child

Sometimes when readers present problems to me they are so close to them that they take it for granted that I, too, know the whole story.

This is true as regards a letter I received this morning from a wife and mother of a babe, whose husband nags her and beats her and throws the furniture around. She fails to say what her mate loses his temper over. If I should know this perhaps I might offer some constructive suggestions.

However, if he is merely a "spoiled darling," if she could arrange to go on a visit and take her baby for a few months and let him smash up the furniture without an audience he might know this perhaps I might offer some constructive suggestions.

The tables are turned and I am the wife of a nagging husband. Nothing pleases him but to nag and he loses his temper over nothing, beats me and throws the furniture around.

We have a small child and although he pretends to love it, he swears at it dreadfully when no one is around. However, if someone is calling, he pretends to be the proud father, cuddles the baby and is so sweet to me! But if something doesn't go his way, he uses the world's worst language and insults me at every turn (when we are alone).

Please don't think I'm a meek, unconfident wife who has never earned a cent in her life. I made my own living since I finished high school. I have fairly good taste and I'm "smartly" dressed. However, he doesn't credit me with an ounce of brains. When we were first married I continued to work and get him a decent wardrobe, my friends helped secure him a position, but now that I need clothes I have to beg and plead for everything I get.

But what to do? I can't go out and work with a small baby. Should I accept the abuse until my baby is old enough to leave with someone? My parents are unable to help. Thanks, Sincerely, "OFF THE DEEP END."

In a predicament like you find yourself in, it is so much easier to give advice than to take it. You have omitted an important thing in your letter. Do you have any shreds of love left for the father of your child, and do you think he might ever come to his senses? Unless I should know this it would be impossible to give a fair answer.

November Wedding Date Is Incentive For Shower

Since formal announcement of the engagement of Miss Helen Demetriou and Paul Johnson, many members of the younger set have made plans to entertain for the popular bride-elect, whose wedding will be an event of November fourteenth. Most recent of the series of lovely affairs was a bridge party last evening at which Mrs. G. F.

Ludlow, Santa Ana, and her daughter, Mrs. Clyde Higgins of Orange, were hostesses in the home of the latter.

A color scheme of golden yellow and white was carried out in every appointment, with various blossoms in the chosen shades arranged throughout the home. Tallies and placards served were dainty little flowered be-ribboned cards fashioned by Mrs. Higgins.

Late in the evening Miss Demetriou was escorted to a large table where flowers were flanked by burning tapers and many lovely packages, all containing dainty linens for her trousseau. Linen gifts were the prizes that the hostesses bestowed on Miss Eleanor Wisner, Miss Helen Demetriou, and Miss Betty Vorce, for their high bridge scores.

Refreshments consisted of small tables centered with crystal bubble bowls in which floated yellow rosebuds, concluded the evening, and guests served included the honor guest, her mother, Mrs. George Demetriou, Miss Valerie Demetriou, Miss Dorothy Dunbar, Mrs. Lee Hasenjaeger, Mrs. Paul Reynolds, Mrs. John Schwerin, Miss Virginia Golden, Mrs. Carleton Smith.

Other guests at the delightful party last night were Mrs. Locke Livernash and Miss Mary Livernash of Los Angeles, Mrs. I. A. ### LOVELY TEA COMPLIMENTS VISITOR

The visit to Santa Ana this week of Mrs. Clarence E. Bowman, missionary to Nigeria, Africa, was an incentive for a charming informal tea given in her honor by Mrs. Herman Landis in the Landis home at 407 South Garney.

Presiding at the tea urn for the afternoon hours were Mrs. Charles Baker, who was assisted by Mrs. Bury Henard. Special guests for the afternoon were Mrs. H. H. Vaniman of Long Beach, sister of Mrs. Heckman, with whom she is staying during her visit in Southern California, and Mrs. Elizabeth Vaniman of LaVerne, who is the mother of Mrs. Landis and an old friend of Mrs. Heckman.

The group who called during the afternoon to meet or renew acquaintances with Mrs. Heckman included Mrs. Gorman Rensberger, Mrs. J. W. Baker, Mrs. Bury Henard, Mrs. Charles Baker, Mrs. E. S. Harper, and two daughters, Hazel and Donella, and Mrs. Cleo Bezy of La Habra, who was a college classmate of Mrs. Heckman.

In the middle of an argument over the effect of liquor on a driver, Judge Allen reported, one juror stood up in the box and shouted:

SANTA ANA CHURCHES WELCOME YOU SERMONETTE

(ON THIS WEEK'S CHURCH SCHOOL LESSON)

By Glenn L. Thorne

THE CHRISTIAN IN HIS KEEPING?

I remember once when as a small boy back in Michigan my father took me fishing with him—or rather he went fishing with me. We were crossing a small creek over a log and I remember putting my hand in his for safety. When nearly across I slipped and would have fallen into the stream, but father swung me safely to the other bank where we were going. Safe on the other side I exclaimed, "I hanged on tight, didn't I, Pop?" To which he answered, "Yes, my boy, but I am afraid that if I had not 'hanged' on to you, you might not have made it." In later years when I have been going through hard places, I have "hanged" on to God, and He has "hanged" on to me, and I have safely crossed dangerous waters. We have all had those same keeping experiences. Who can deny His keeping power if we will but put our trust in Him?

We are apt to get some of this bogus money in any business transaction. Yet, do we throw up our hands and say, "No, I don't want it. There's counterfeit money loose" whenever we are offered money? No! We know that while there is some counterfeit, the most is genuine. That same reasoning holds as regards Christians. Jude describes the unthinkable low levels to which men should fall but which we know to be a fact for we see it all about us. We need not be surprised to find these conditions. There is a form of the Church, the mystic body of Christ, into which such persons cannot enter, but they do creep into the organized church unawares. But though there may not be a perfect outward church, let not this fact in any way destroy our confidence or weaken our faith.

This brings us to our second outstanding lesson which is that there is a bright side to the picture. While there may be hangers on hypocrites in the outward organized church there is also within it a group of genuine converted Christians who are growing in grace, strengthening their faith, and really keeping in the love of God and His commandments. And to the Christian who really commits himself into His keeping, there is no power that can take him out of His care. One needs but to trust and obey. A true faith need not fear, except fear to disobey. There is an eternal security for those who keep themselves in His love by walking in the light.

We now have before us the two types to be found in the outward church. In the closing of the epistle Jude rises to the task of again urging the people to be true to God and the faith. The first group seems to be "ignored" and Jude's admonitions are toward the true Christians. They were to build themselves up in the most holy faith. They were to keep themselves in the love of God, to be sincere in prayer, to look for help from him.

There need be no fear for one who continues faithful. Truth will always be truth in spite of what these who have crept in may say or do, yet for the sake of the church and those who might be deceived, these must earnestly contend for and defend the faith.

It has been said by some that it doesn't make much difference what a man believes, just so he is sincere. But such is not the case. A small neighbor boy came into my mother's kitchen one time just as she was getting ready to iron. He said, "that iron isn't hot 'cause it hasn't been on the stove." He really believed the iron was not hot and believed it so strongly that he touched it with his finger, but his sincerity of belief did not save a burned finger, because it was an electric iron. It does make a difference what men believe, and there is a faith which is the true way, and this must be presented and defended. This is not a carnal contention, quarrelsome or with angry argumentation. It is clear, definite, continuous, logical, convincing instruction given in love. It is a definite faith for which we are to contend. It is not an opinion of man, nor the mere result of human reason and finding.

Truth is not something of human making and there is much that man cannot discover. There must be told to him. We have received it through the Bible, and it is taught and taught from generation to generation. The enemy has tried hard to destroy and pervert this message from within and without, but the true church has held to it and contended for it and continues to do so. The church's great value in the world is in the holding to and presenting this revealed and experienced faith.

DRESDEN PORCELAIN
It is not often that man's lust for gold plays a part in the creation of a beautiful piece of art. Yet Dresden porcelain resulted from such a motive, together with the creator's fear for his life.

In early 18th-century Europe, Johann Friedrich Bottger, alchemist to Augustus II, king of Saxony, claimed he held the secret of transmutation of base metals into gold. His patron enthusiastically supplied him with funds to carry out his scheme. However, Bottger met repeated failures in his attempts to create wealth. Augustus lost patience with him and threatened his life if he did not produce something of value.

In desperation, Bottger took the advice of an able chemist, von Tschirnhaus, and turned his efforts toward the creation of a porcelain that would rival in beauty the finest importations from China. In 1707 Bottger scored a success that reestablished him in the favor of the court by creating a fine red stoneware that took a bright polish. It became popular under the name "Bottger ware."

Are We Fooling Ourselves?

With President Roosevelt and the diplomats of Britain, France and Russia excited over enforcing "an international quarantine" on Japan, and perhaps on other aggressor nations, such as Germany and Italy, eventually—it's high time for the American people to wake up.

A few short weeks ago, The Journal pointed out editorially that American citizens in China are few in number and that our financial stake there is comparatively small.

The vast majority of citizens applauded.

Now President Roosevelt has indicated that the United States will take part in some sort of vague action against Japan, and the fat is on the way to the fire.

It's all very reminiscent of 1913-14. We gave lip service to peace and gradually worked ourselves into a lather over "atrocities" and then plunged into the European mess.

Sadder, and we thought wiser, we vowed never to have a war again except in defense of American soil.

The President's proposal, sincere though it may be, sounds to us strangely like the world court or league of nations, all schemes which failed to find the peace they sought.

Why not learn by experience, and adopt a practical way of staying out of war?

There is a concrete example of this method of practical neutrality which kept the countries of Holland and Denmark, Norway and Sweden, and Switzerland out of the World War, despite the fact that they were surrounded by warring nations.

A two-fold policy made a success of practical neutrality. In the first place, these nations informed the world that they would not go to war, and they warned their own citizens to keep from the high seas as much as possible, and under no circumstances to go any place, or commit any act that would endanger this policy of neutrality.

The second half of the neutrality policy was a strong national defense. These small countries had no intention of going to war, but they were ready at the drop of the hat to fight off any invading army.

America has a third factor that makes practical neutrality a possibility. That is our isolation, by thousands of miles, from both the war-torn East and West.

We need no "international quarantine" for that would cause the nations we attempted to quarantine to turn snarling against us.

A strong home defense, and a policy of minding our own business can form the basis of a practical neutrality which will carry us through the storm ahead.

Do we really want to stay out of war, or are we just fooling ourselves?

Landon, says a Topeka news item, is more tanned than he was last year. You'd think the tanning he got last year was plenty.

Would You Like It?

We came back recently from Shangri-la. Well, at least, we've just seen the movie, "Lost Horizon."

Shangri-la, for those of you who don't know, is sort of a super-Utopia. It was started by a Belgian priest. Nobody worries there. There is no struggle, no battle for existence, no competition, no strife.

It is bad manners to desire another man's girl friend, but if you do desire her then it's bad manners on your rival's part not to let you have her.

Shangri-la residents live to be hundreds of years old, presumably because there is nothing to worry about, no taxes to pay, no bill collectors, no frustration. Everybody's motto is kindness and peace. Brotherly love reigns supreme. All is calm and beautiful. People eat only what is good for them and drink the most healthful mountain water imaginable.

"Girls" of 100 years or so look like co-eds of 20. But if they leave Shangri-la they immediately revert to their true age—wrinkles and all.

Shangri-la exists, of course, only in the mind of dreamers. But suppose, for the sake of argument, there were such a place. Would you like to live there?

Remember, you'd be cut off entirely from the outside. You'd be free of worldly trials and tribulations; but you'd also exchange the pleasures of this earth for the unexciting if comfortable life of heaven-on-earth.

Chances are your only worry would be about what's going on "back home."

And that's just the point. We wonder how many of us, geared as we are to modern streamlined civilization, could give up our hectic hurdy-gurdy life even for such a heavenly existence?

Think it over before you ask for a one-way ticket to Shangri-la.

Higher-up Japs will wear shabby clothing to reduce Japan's textile exports. Why not turn nudist?

When My Ship Comes In

One of the most vain delusions on the long list mankind has so carefully built for himself is that which is expressed in the superstitious phrase, "When my ship comes in."

The phrase means, of course, "when a great stroke of good fortune comes my way." It is manifested in the great numbers of people who give their funds to support such enterprises as the sweepstakes lotteries and the numbers rackets.

Maybe a few in a million may win something or other in such games of chance. The chance provides a sedative for normal desire and a narcotic for normal ambition.

Opportunities pass in never-ending procession past the eyes of those who fix their gaze on a distant horizon, watching for "a ship" that, by the law of averages, can never come in.

FAIR Enough

FDR Swats The Hoodlum Nations

By Westbrook Pegler

The President's speech on the hoodlum nations was a shocker, no question, the more startling because he engaged in no preliminary argument of you're another thing but just upped and busted them one. The same tone of voice a few years ago would have been much more effective, for the Nazis were less sure of themselves then, although their intentions were almost as plain as now.

As matters stand, they and the Italians are armed to the eyebrows and spoiling for a fight and both are exporting their lunacy to other countries too weak or listless to resist. The Italians have been less troublesome here, but they organized their gangs a long time ago and indulged in a little cutting and shooting with the anti-Fascist Italians and now they are quite openly and arrogantly allied with the Nazi organizations which conduct semi-military formations on the hospitable soil of an indulgent nation.

All this may seem trivial and, in point of numbers, the combined Fascist and Nazi camps do not amount to much, but a bullet makes only a little hole going in. Both Mussolini and Hitler have openly declared their contempt for democracy, the Duce, in his latest editorial lumping it in with communism, liberalism and everything else that he doesn't like.

LOATHING IS MUTUAL

Hitler's sentiments are the same, and it is surely no mistake, in view of their self-expressed detestation of American ideals, for the American President to let it be said for the sake of the record, that the loathing is mutual, if not more so. Anyway, it certainly cannot be said that we in this country started this trouble, for we have never interfered in their internal affairs, as they have in ours, or even that we attempted any obstruction when they went marauding in Abyssinia or Spain.

To look ahead, as the President said, what can this country expect when the stick-up nations have taken over Spain and, as Mussolini predicted for tomorrow, made all Europe Fascist? After Europe has been consolidated, what about us? We are a rich country actively envied and only a little less heartily hated for our success not only in material things but in governing ourselves by the consent of the governed, a matter in which they both achieved miserable failure.

Just now they are attempting to place another hostile frontier on the west of France which will take as much guarding as the German line. Grown to complete power in Europe, would they be taken to the state penitentiary in the near future.

This is a case in which two men and a few hundred subordinate leaders are threatening the peaceful nations with war. No country is safe which isn't able and ready to protect itself, for they are set to pounce on any desirable spot of geography which isn't well defended, and they are only beginning to feel their muscle after years of preparation for nothing else but conquest.

A STRANGE LANGUAGE

There is no use attempting to reason with them, for they speak a language peculiar to their mentality which sane and honest people cannot understand. A sample of this is the statement of the spokesman of the Japanese foreign office who said that Japan's policy "to carry on her peaceful development on the continent (China) not for the sake of the Japanese alone but for the happiness of the Chinese."

This is out of the same book in which Mussolini described his Ethiopian war as a war of defense and the same in which Hitler, while exhorting the Germans to breed, reiterates Germany is overcrowded.

Certainly this country has no desire for war and its most warlike feeling is one of resentment against nations which threaten to force the world into war. Possibly the warning of the President, though non-specific, will be sufficient to make the hoodlum countries back away and avoid a rough and tumble, for they had not counted this country among their possible opponents, and their calculations may need revision and their preparations more time.

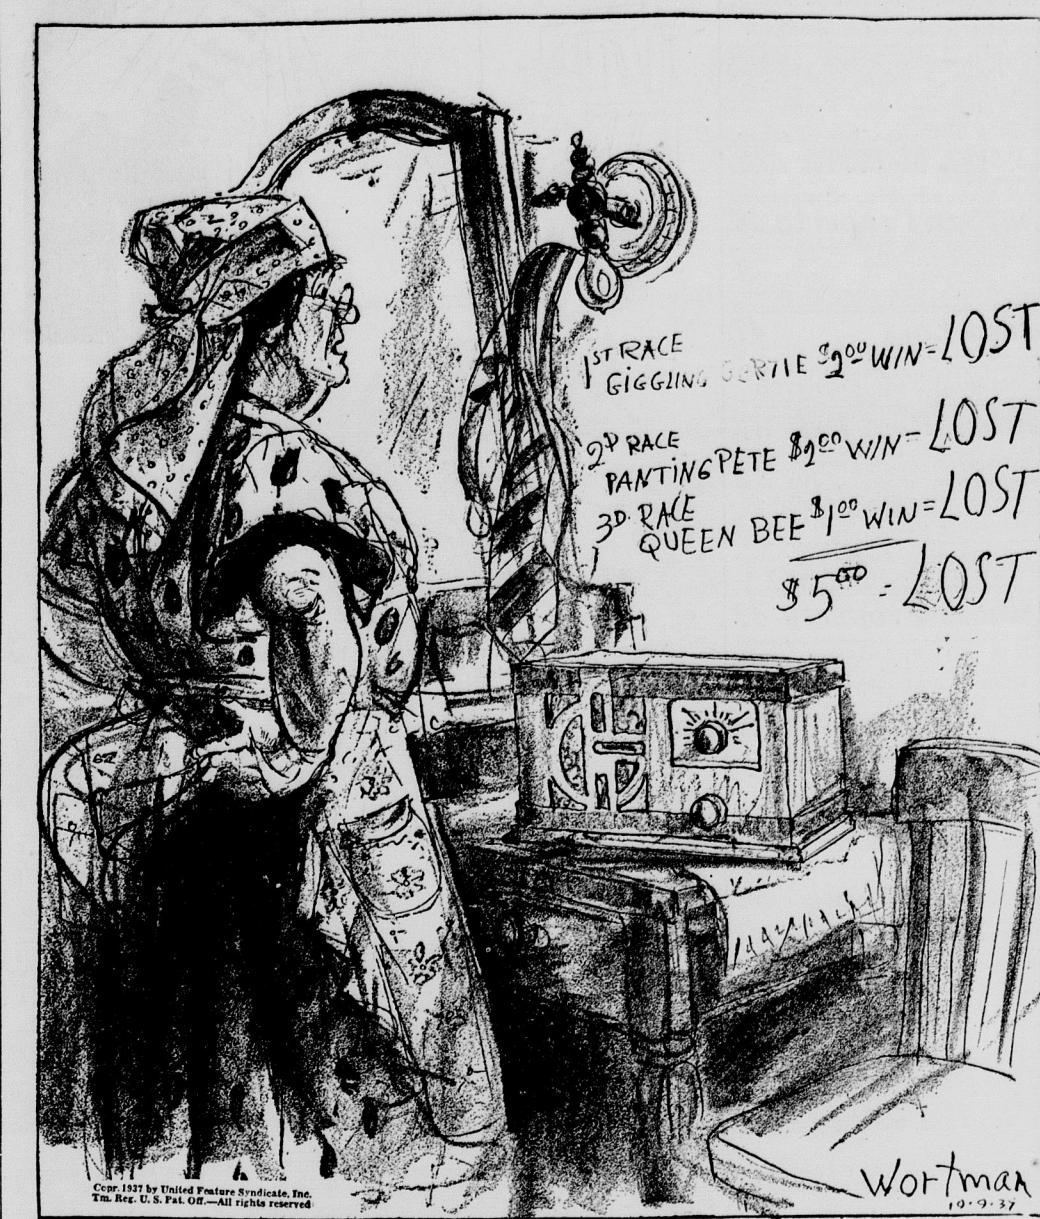

He may prove to have done the very thing that was necessary to prevent that war which they have been planning. They are now in the position of the man in the stud game with kings backed up who sees an ace fall in the next man's hand and says, "Time out; I wish to think."

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Hull does nothing about trade treaties despite vigorous ballyhoo; last one signed in February; three nations trying hard to get action; Roosevelt-DuPont wedding didn't stop DuPont League gifts; cattle embargo so strict it keeps giraffes out of Washington zoo.

WASHINGTON.—State department officials are keeping very quiet about it, but although Secretary Hull seems to live, eat and breathe trade treaties, he has done absolutely nothing about them in the last nine months.

Congress has extended his power to negotiate treaties. Various diplomats have been pounding on his door demanding trade. Prices have gone up so that consumers would welcome counteracting cheap imports. But Mr. Hull has done nothing.

He has hired a public relations expert to ballyhoo the importance of trade treaties. He has made some excellent speeches regarding them. But the real fact is that the last trade treaty he negotiated was a dinky little agreement with Salvador signed in February. Nothing has happened since.

Note—The diplomats who have called on Mr. Hull for trade treaties but have got nowhere, are those representing Argentina, Australia and South Africa.

FORBIDDEN GOLD
After the supreme court justices had shed their robes following the opening session of the court, Justice Roberts took three ladies to lunch at the Methodist building restaurant across the street.

After Roberts paid the bill and was walking out with his friends, one of them opened her bag and showed him a five dollar gold piece.

Roberts, who voted to uphold Roosevelt on the gold clause, joshed: "Oh, lady, I'll tell you! To jail you go. Have you a special dispensation from the treasury to keep that?"

DUPONTS VS. ROOSEVELTS
Marriage of one of their daughters into the Roosevelt family hasn't made much difference to the Duponts in their political opposition.

Latest list of contributions to the Liberty league shows a $7375 contribution from Irene DuPont, $5000 from Pierre DuPont, and $2500 from Lamont DuPont. Four other lesser members of the DuPont dynasty contributed amounts varying from $100 to $500.

Irene DuPont alone contributed $32,375 to the Liberty league's fight against Roosevelt this year, most of it having been given after the Roosevelt-DuPont wedding.

GIRAFFE QUARANTINE
Not much appeared in the press about it, but one undercover campaign which western senators staged against Roosevelt last session was to block ratification of his Argentine sanitary convention, which permitted meat from areas not infected with hoof-and-mouth disease to be imported into the United States.

A strict embargo is maintained against all meat or cattle from infected countries, and opposition to the modifying treaty was so strong that it was pigeon-holed.

Continuing this strict policy, the department of agriculture has now quarantined the four prize giraffes which Director William Mann has just brought from Africa for the National zoo in Washington.

Although they will be confined to a few square feet in the zoo, and never come in contact with American cattle, they are being quarantined for hoof-and-mouth and other diseases.

First they were quarantined 60 days at Khartoum, Egypt, then observed on the ship, and now are held for 15 days at Athens, N. J.

"However," observed Zoo Director Mann, "I hope they will soon be in Washington and will bless their home with a few young ones long before the Argentine sanitary convention is ratified."

TUGWELLTOWN

A trip to Greenbelt, Md., Resettlement's suburban housing project near Washington, is worth a visit just to take in the color scheme. About half of the houses are whitewashed and have a broad, colored band painted across the front of the second story. Doors and window-frames are painted to harmonize with the stripes.

For example, houses with a baby blue stripe have dark blue doors, those with a lavender stripe have purple doors, those with an orchid stripe have deep orange doors, those with a pale green stripe have dark green doors and those with a lemon stripe have yellow doors.

The rooms downstairs are generally painted a flat grey, but some of the bedrooms are tinted in blinding greens, blues and yellows.

The inside of Greenbelt theater is decorated with broad pink bands ranging from rose at the bottom to pale pink at the top. Outside, the theater and stores are whitewashed with orange doors and trimmings.

Note—The name by which Greenbelt may be known to posterity is "Tugwelltown," for the famous Brain Trustster who conceived and headed the Resettlement Administration.

The Mailbag

Public opinion, or what somebody in office imagines to be public opinion, is our ruler. If public opinion is active, the politician and people sit up and take notice. There is a definite need for outspoken talking and thinking on public matters. Honest, intelligent fair discussion of our problems is immensely useful, and that every citizen may have his say and contribute to the formation of public opinion, The Journal invites letters to The Mailbag.

SLICK POLITICS

To the Editor: Of the mass of published comments upon Justice Black's radio address three must particularly interest Journal readers.

H. C. Haroldson, Los Angeles barber: "It looks like he quit the Klan for political reasons."

Yes, it looks as if Black joined as well as quit for political reasons. American politics.

Kansas City Post: "He stands behind the nation as a man of extremely 'flexible' convictions."

And the stand-pat majority of the supreme court has having no flexible convictions.

Raleigh News: "Let only those who have not made mistakes go on shouting and a great silence will now descend upon the land." Recalls that incidents when a mob started to stone an adulteress and Jesus said: "Let him among you who is without sin cast the first stone." Beyond all doubt, if this public shouting were left to all those who favored the K. K. K., there would not be much less noise about the one big sheep who was lost from the fold of tolerance but is recovered for the supreme court along the numerous ways and byways of slick American politics.

What Other Editors Say

A LABOR QUESTION

Some of the remarks in these columns about the labor situation have been variously copied and put to further use. And thinking along that line (and it's difficult for anyone interested in business today to get his mind off of that subject) I am reminded of a man I have known for a long time, an employer of mine, and a very kindly and friendly person.

During the deep years of the depression, '31, '32 and '33, he went through hell and high water, to keep his business in operation. He lost money every time he turned a wheel, and it would have been infinitely better had he closed down the business and gone fishing. He went deeper and deeper in the red, borrowed and borrowed, and borrowed some more. Why? To keep his men employed, so that they could eat. He had no other motive for running. There was none. He knew if he turned the men loose there were no jobs they could get.

Not long ago there was a sudden change. As he himself put it, "Men who have worked for me a generation and have always been my friends, suddenly discovered that I was 'unfair.' So he accepted their terms and now they are working under a new rule. But a high fence has grown up between him and his men. The mutual interest that used to be manifest, has disappeared. But the question that looms large in my mind in considering that case and others like it (and there were countless thousands of same) is when the next business slump comes along, (and who is there that doubts that they will come?) how long is that employer going to be in the "red" to keep that plant operating?

HON. SHABBINESS

Adolphe, Menjou, Hollywood's glass of fashion and owner of a $50,000 wardrobe, says American men are fast gaining the distinction of being the worst-dressed males in the world.

Believing with Robert Herrick that "a sweet disorder in the dress kindles in clothes a wantonness," we were just about ready to accept handsome Adolphe's soft impeachment, and even goad over it, when word came from Tokyo that America is going to have the palm in Japan. A group of high-ranking Japanese officials over here have organized to practice "honorable shabbiness" to reduce Japan's textile imports and help her win her war to make the world safe for democracy. A vice-minister went so far as to urge a No Suit Association!

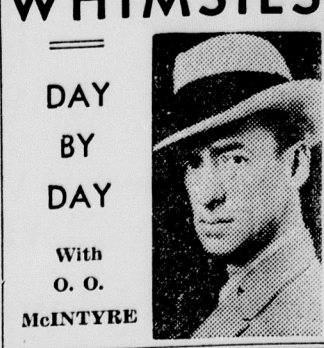

Doubtless the well-dressed Japanese gentleman soon will blossom out under the cherry trees clad in a barrel. Which is another proof that in a number of things this country just can't compete with the Land of the Rising Sun.—San Francisco News.

WHIMSIES

DAY BY DAY

With O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK.—To my notion no book has the power to roll back the years like Mark Twain's Tom Sawyer. After putting it down last evening I spent a pleasant hour in the hazy oblivion of Boyville. Back in the days when the back yard, kitchen stoop and old barn seemed especially halcyon.

Not many children of this generation, even in the small towns, know the simple pleasures of play-grounds, where frolic is regimen and lacking abandon. Also there are the movies. All tending to make the back yard seem run down at heel and tacky.

But for another generation the back yard was boys' domain, where we fought Indians, searched for pirate gold, played baseball, gave our circuses and pin shows. Back yards kept boys off the streets. We only appeared on the front porch, all scrubbed and shining, after sundown.

There was a lure about the tousled back yard with its ash pile, coal shed and chicken runway that years cannot dim. It was a cloister for looking sad when it appeared as though we might not get to go to the circus. Where we mooned when the only girl gave us the mitten.

There was something enchanting, too, about the aromatic old barn, especially the hay mow, where most of us—of all places—got all dizzied up with our first cigarette. The hay mow could in an instant become a robber's den, a haunted house or a fort behind which we resisted the attack of outlaws. Sometimes in climbing the ladder to the loft, the barn became a sailing ship, and, holding to the spar, we rode through mountainous waves, shouting order to sailors against the boom.

Every boy goes through the performing period following the visit of the circus. One of my specialties was the black wire, stretched from the walnut tree to the high fence. I mastered it, that is to the extent of walking forward and backward, kneeling and crawling through a hoop. But not without suffering a last of humanity falls, any one of which today would trundle me, feet up, to the hospital.

My greatest proficiency, however, was trick bicycle riding. So proficient I came nearly making it a career. A repertory show made an offer. I was to appear in the olio and double in the orchestra. But mandolin playing was my only musical accomplishment and that balked the deal—that and grandma's threat to give me a dose of her famous "birch tea." But I immediately subscribed for the New York Dramatic Mirror and watched the "Wanted—On Tour" column.

I never see a juggler, Indian club swinger or artist of the flying trapeze and horizontal bars without reflecting that most of them save those from the circus families—are products of the back yard pin shows. W. C. Fields, Joe Cook, etc., are alumni. And it would surprise how many stars of the stage and screen had their genesis in the penny parlor show.

Boys in our neighborhood were known as the Court street gang. First to go bare-foot and last to don shoes. Our summer costumes consisted of a 25-cent shirt, blue denim pants and a ten-cent straw hat. Boys, even back in the hollow, do not dress that way today. I am told that going barefoot is almost a lost custom. That's too bad. Going barefoot should be a part of a boy's heritage.

The ol' swimmin' hole, too, is mostly missing. But I am one of the die-hards who does not believe the 20th century sanitized swimming pool is comparable to the thrills of that murmur-like pool shaded by the mighty oak, under the creek bank. There we shucked our clothes as quick as a wink and plunged au naturel. Sometimes a town constable would appear on the brow of the hill and grab our clothes. We would scamper through a neighboring cornfield, dressing on the run. Pausing after a time to catch our breath and perhaps raid a nearby watermelon patch. It would be difficult to make the modern boy in his Eton jacket with all his flossy gadgets, including a stumpy roadster, believe those were the good old days. Perhaps they were not, but we still have a hunch they were.

Bright Moments

Camillo Cavour, the Italian statesman, had a habit of selecting men who were always busily employed in other walks of life to help him in any governmental enterprise. Once a friend asked him why he did this, with so many good men available who had more time to devote to this work. Cavour replied: "Whenever I want anything done quickly I always go to a busy man; the unemployed man never has any time."
